RECOMMEND ROCKVIEW TO BE SEPARATE PRISON

State Welfare Dept. Condemns One Big Penitentiary Plan.

ASKS 3 FARM PRISONS

The great dream of John Francies, former warden of the western penitentiary, at present superintendent of construction at Rockview, to centralize the two big penitentiaries of the State in one mammoth farm prison apparently has been scrapped by the administration at Harrisburg. Director Ellen Potter, of the State Department of Welfare, which department has supervision over all State prisons, has formally recommended to Governor Pinchot that the Rockview plan is "not sound;" that even if completed along the original lines it would not have sufficient capacity to care for the prisoners from the eastern and western penitentiaries, and that in her judgment, as well as that of investigators who have studied the problem, any one prison large enough to care for all such convicts could not be operated efficiently.

Dr. Potter recommends to the Governor that the prison system for the State embrace three sections. It is recommended that the management of Rockview be separated entirely from that of the western penitentiary in Pittsburgh. It is urged that the eastern penitentiary, in Philadelphia, be transferred to some farm location nearby that city. In part, Dr. Potter's report to the Governor said:

"In order still further to relieve congestion, our investigators recommend that building operations be suspended on the cell block at Rockview, which is about 47 per cent completed, and that a portion of the money available be at once diverted to the construction of an inexpensive type of dormitory which can later be used for shop purposes.

"This would undoubtedly afford relief and give us permanent progress, but many of our legislators believe so implicity in the Rockview project that I doubt if on short notice they would be willing even to listen to the suggestion, and as there is not sufficient time to educate them as to the wisdom of a change of plan. I would suggest as an alternative to appropriate the full $200,000 to the department of public welfare for the development of prison industries, through capital outlay, etc., as provided in your original budget, we at once undertake the building of shops at Rockview which could be temporarily used as dormitories and later be equipped for manufacturing purposes.

"The completion of the present cell block could be pushed at the same time, and if the appropriation of $400,000 is sufficient, it might be completed by 1925.

"The law as it stands permits the judge to determine the maximum and minimum sentence of offenders. In these days when severe sentences are often thought of as deterrents to crime, many judges give the maximum with a minimum so nearly that of the maximum that no incentive is left to the convict to try to make good. These long sentences also contribute to over-crowding since an ever increasing number of men are kept in the institution.

"Our investigators recommend that there be enacted without fail the proposed amendments to the parole law drawn, I believe, by Doctor Kirchway and introduced, I believe, by Mr. Stites.

"The items indicated above are matters needing legislation now if we are to be able to make progress during the next biennium.

"May I add that one problem will not be solved unyder an law until we have men as wardens who have a vision of their problem as one of social reconstruction. I believe we have the makings of such a warden in Mr. Egan.

"We cannot secure and develop such men until we have boards of prison inspectors who are men and women of broad social vision, who are unselfish servants of the state, who are discriminating choosers of men for executive positions and who do not overload their wardens with responsibility.

"Your problem of wisely choosing the members of these boards is one of the most difficult of your many difficult undertakings."

"If for any reason it should seem impractical to provide for the three districts at this time, it would seem to me 'urgently necessary' that the administration of Rockview be set up under a management separate from that of the Western Penitentiary, since the problems of the institutions are too many and too great for one warden and one board to

BIG DAY ON JUNE 14 FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

EVERYTHING IS FREE

The Elks have plans for the second Kiddies Day well under way. The event to which hundreds of our boys and girls look forward to with keen anticipation will come on Thursday, June 14. The Flag Day exercises, under direction of the Elks, will be held in the afternoon, starting ar 1:30 o'clock. Rev. M. DePui Maynard will be the speaker.

Last summer some 600 kiddies were guests of the Elks at Hecla Park. Parents, friends and others who joined in a basket picnic brought the total attendance close to 2,000. This year arrangements are being made for a larger attendance, some of the leaders expecting as high as 1,000 boys and girls. Coming as it does on the stores' half-holiday, it is thought many of the clerks and business men, with their families, will go to the park for the afternoon and evening.

The Flag Day exercises are observed nationally by the Elks to stimulate love of country and the flag. They were observed last year in connection with Kiddies Day and the same is true this year.

Registration of the boys and girls who plan to attend began on Monday. The Elks will provide transportation, eats, canoes, games, contests and entertainment free of cost to all boys and girls in the county between 6 and 14 years old. However, to insure proper and adequate arrangements being made, every boy and girl who is planning to go to Hecla Park for the big day, should register now.

Busses will leave the Elks, beginning at 8:30 on Thursday morning, June 14. The Elks will be "Big Brothers" for the day and will not only try to give all their guests a real day of pleasure, but will carefully watch to guard against any harm coming to the boys or girls. Besides the busses, many of the Elks are planning to use their automobiles in aiding in transporting the kiddis.

The eats—O, boy—they are to be served in abundance. Sandwiches of all kinds, 3,000; ice cream, 50 gallons; lemonade, all you can drink; peanuts, 150 pounds; potato chips, 1,500 packages; cakes galore and other things that fill the inner kiddie and make a real day out of a picnic.

Remember the caps that all but a few boys and girls received last year and those few missed theirs because some forgot to register (so don't forget that important phase this year)—they were souvenirs. The committee did not divulge what the souvenir would be this time, but they did say there would be something.

A band will be on hand to render music to enliven the occasion. Achenbach's orchestra of State College will also furnish music for dancing. There will be a schedule of contests of all kinds, the winners in each instance to be suitably rewarded.

Summarizing, it really looks as though Kiddies Day needs only one thing to make it as nice and much bigger even than last year and the committee has no control over that. It's a nice day everybody wants on June 14 to make the carrying out of the plans the best.

New Car Wrecked.

The new Overland 4 touring car of Joe Mango, of Coleville, was slightly damaged on Monday evening of last week at the crossing near the Bellefonte Central scales. He was making a trial trip in his new auto. The operation being new to him, he put his foot on the gas throttle and opened it, so that the car shot ahead. Some cars were on the crossing and possibly saved the occupants from being run down by the train. The front of the automobile struck head-on against the side of a car, the former being damaged and one front wheel broken. Joe had his car towed to a garage for repairs.

Graduate 21 at Port Matilda.

The Port Matilda High School Commencement exercises were held on Tuesday evening and 21 graduates were presented with diplomas. The Commencement address was delivered by Rev. Edwin Howard Romig, of State College.

Elmer Ripka Hurt.

Elmer Ripka, of Spring Mills, who has been employed at the erection of the new Nittany Printing company office at State College, was very painfully injured on Friday morning. One of the steel girders fell upon the unfortunate workman.

LAST DAY EXERCISES AT SCHOOLS

Commencement Week Program of Bellefonte High School—Allegheny and Bishop Street Schools Have Plays—Alumni Reception and Dance—Teachers Leaving.

That season of the year when our public schools close for the summer vacation is next week. For several weeks there has been much activity by the teachers and pupils in preparation for the annual events of Commencement Week.

The Baccalaureate sermon will be preached to the High School graduates by Rev. Wilson P. Ard, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church, next Sunday evening, June 3rd, in the Presbyterian church.

The Junior Oratorical Contest for the W. F. Reynotds' prize is on Monday evening in the High School auditorium. The contestants and their subjects are given as follows:

Kathryn Johnston—"Jean Val Jean the Convict" by Victor Hugo.

Helen Brown—"Mrs. Mavor's Story" from Black Rock by Ralph Connor.

Elizabeth Hunter—"The Scholar of Ben Korat" by Nathaniel P. Willis.

Mildred Brown—"The Lost Word" by Henry Van Dyke

Mahlon Robb—"The Black Horse and His Rider" by Charles Sheppard

Thurston Smith—"The Storming of Mission Ridge" by Benjamin Taylor.

Clair Parsons—"The Death of Arthur" from the "Passing of Arthur" by Tennyson.

Jack Yeager—"The Fight with the Aurochs" from "Quo Vadis" by Henryk Sienkiewicz.

Philip Ray—"Fort Wagner" by Anna E. Dickinson.

The Allegheny street building grades will present their gypsy play, which we understand is very good, at the High School auditorium on Tuesday morning.

Tuesday evening, "The Garden of the Shah," a remarkable production by High School talent, will be given in the auditorium at the High School. Much time and work has been spent in preparation for this play and it is one of the big features of Commencement Week.

A Japanese fantasy, by pupils of the Bishop street building is the closing exercise to be given in the High School auditorium on Wednesday morning. The quaint Japanese costumes will lend an original touch to this exercise that adds much to the entertainment.

Wednesday evening will be the climax when the Commencement Exercises will be held in the High School auditorium and the Bellefonte High School will graduate the biggest class in its history. The Commencement address will be delivered by Dr. Robert Ellwood, pastor of the famous Boardwalk church of Atlantic City.

The exhibitions in the Manuel Training department, Prof. H. E. Menold, instructor, will be ready on Monday. A large number of the nicest pieces of work are already at the school house and show wonderful care and skill in construction. All who go to hear the entertainments, should also visit the rooms where the industrial art achievements are being exhibited.

There will be a number of changes in the teaching force for next year. Resignations of six teachers have already been received.

"Miss Bessie" Dorworth, of the primary room; Miss Isabella Barnhart, of the 3rd grade; Miss Bertha M. Wagner, head of the domestic science department; and William R. Ishler, who has been instructor of science; all from the Allegheny street building; Miss Alice Dorworth, formerly teacher in the primary room and recently of the 7th grade; Miss Mayme Woods, of the 4th grade, in the Bishop street building. Some of the teachers have tired of single life and will become brides. Miss Wagner will go to Sunbury to take charge of the domestic science department in the High School there and Mr. Ishler, who is a graduate chemist of the Pennsylvania State College, has several attractive offers from industrial firms, one of which he will accept.

DEMOLAY CHAPTER ORGANIZED

Elaborate Ceremonies as 88 Candidates Are Received.

Monday evening the Knights Templar of this section successfully directed a very memorable event when 88 candidates were received and the Penn—Centre Chapter, Order of DeMolay, was instituted with proper and elaborate ceremonies.

A parade of the Knights Templar, headed by the Wetzler Boys' band, of Milesburg, in their uniforms, marched over the principal streets attracting much attention and worthy comment. The parade formed at the Masonic building on North Allegheny St., the Knights of Constans Commandery, No. 33 assembling with their guests from commanderies at Philipsburg, Lock Haven, Huntingdon and Lewistown, at 7 o'clock, under command of Commander Charle Garbrick. They were followed by the 88 candidates, in military formation, with several captains in charge.

At the Bush House, Right Eminent Sir Past Grand Commander Ralph C. Mineart, of Pittsburgh, Deputy Grand Councilor for the Order of DeMolay in Pennsylvania, and Division Grand Commander Charles T. Derrick, of Bellwood, were welcomed with a present swords formation and were escorted to the opera house, whese they passed through the lines, followed by the boy candidates.

Nearly 500 Knights and friends, it is estimated, were in the opera house, to participate in or observe the institution of the local chapter, which is third in the state. The program was carried on for nearly three hours, the boys rendering for the first time the beautiful degrees in their own resplendent regalia in a manner that neared perfectioh and elicited continuous applause.

The Master Councilor of the new chapter is John Schiller Dubbs, who in the ceremony of institution by the board of advisors headed by Deputy Grand Councilor Minehart that preceded the initiatory and DeMolay degrees, had been fully instructed in the cardinal principles and teachings of the order.

The initiatory degree by the 21 officers of the boys, very attractive in their beautiful robes, followed the ceremony of institution assisted by a fine choir. The impressive working of the degree during the changes of scene and setting was marvelous.

Past Grand Commander Wilson I. Fleming and Col. J. L. Spangler made rousing addresses for support for the great order and were well pleased with the generous response.

After the conferring of the DeMolay degree, the gathering was adjourned and candidates and audiences were served with delightful refreshments.

James H. Potter Injured.

James H. Potter, senior member of the firm of Potter-Hoy Hardware Co., of Bellefonte, was very painfully injured on Saturday afternoon in a collision at Burnham. Mr. Potter's brother in Baltimore, Md., has been very ill and our fellow townsman was planning to visit him. He left Bellefonte at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon in his Ford coupe and was driving to Lewistown, where he intended to board a train for Baltimore. In Burnham, a big touring car with a number of employes of the Standard Steel Co. as passengers, drove in from a side street and neither the driver nor Mr. Potter, it seems, noticed each other until too late to avert an accident. In gripping tightly to his steering wheel to prevent being thrown, Mr. Potter's hands were severely jerked when the wheels turned and forcibly moved the steering wheel, and it is believed a small bone in his left hand was fractured.

Returned Home.

George Noll, of State College, who was injured while at work at Rockview, as mentioned last week, and whose injuries were considered serious, was not so much hurt as was at first though and he was able to return home on Saturday.

NEW HUNTING LICENSE YEAR MAY 1 TO APRIL 30

Gov. Pinchot Signs Law Which Becomes Effective at Once.

LICENSE FEE MADE $1.25

Pennsylvania's new hunting law, which was placed in immediate operation when it was signed last week by Governor Pinchot, at Harrisburg, increases the resident hunting license fee from $1 to $1.25, and changes the license period from January 1st to December 31st in any year to May 1st of one year to April 30th of the following year. The non-resident hunting license fee is increased from $10 to $15.

The department at Harrisburg will receive $1.15 net on each resident hunter's license, the county treasurer retaining 10 cents as at present. On non-resident licenses the department will receive $14 50, the balance being retained by the county in which the license was issued. The new law makes it unlawful to knowingly issue a license to any person physically or mentally unfitted to carry or use fire arms.

The penalty for a non-resident hunting without a license is increased from $25 to $40 and for a resident hunting with license not properly counter-signed reduced from $20 to $5. Boys under 16 years of age will not be required to secure license to trap fur bearing animals.

Open seasons will be practically the same as heretofore with the exception of that for waterfowl which will extend from October 1 to January 31. Only male ring-necked pheasants may be killed and only male deer with two or more points to one antler. Bag limits for pheasants are reduced from three to two and camp limits for bears increased from three to four. There is also a provision which will permit the Game Commission, upon application, to declare a three days open season on doe deer at the close of the season on male deer. The bounty on wildcats has been increased from $8 to $15, on gray foxes from $2 to $4 and on weasels it has been reduced to $1.

MAN FATALLY INJURED

Squeezed Against Fence by Myers' State College Bus.

One of the H. M. Myers' busses, operating between State College and Tyrone, squeezed Franklin Burger against a highway fence and the body of the bus on last Thursday afternoon, near Tyrone, causing a fracture of the skull and other injuries, which resulted in Mr. Burger's death two hours later in the Altoona hospital.

The bus was driven by Earl Boal, a well known young man of State College who has been operating it for two years and Mr. Myers said, "In all that time he never put a scratch on the bus until this accident."

The Coroner held an inquest in Altoona on Friday evening and exonerated Boal from blame," continued Mr. Myers. "The accident occurred at the quarries of the American Lime and Stone company, near Tyrone. There is a bad place in the road there and two men came from the quarries. My driver was watching them, he told me, and did not notice the other man, who was painting a highway fence and whose clothing blended into the color of the fence and background so much that he was not seen, being caught when Mr. Boal swung the bus wide to avoid striking the men who came from the quarries.

"Under the circumstances the accident was unavoidable and my driver immediately did all he could to help the man injured and surrendered himself to the police at Tyrone, who did not think it necessary to hold him, exonerating him from blame."

An eye witness to the accident, it is alleged, said that Mr. Boal was traveling at a moderate rate of speed. One of the young girl occupants of the bus helped care for Mr. Burger and went with him when he was taken to the hospital. He was rendered unconscious by the injuries and remained so to the end. Deceased was 59 years old, and is survived by a widow, two sons and three daughters.

Car Skidded Into Culvert.

Mrs. Benjamin Shaffer, Misses Rachel McKelvey and Eleanor Barnhart, of Bellefonte, were all slightly injured, shaken up and frightened, when the car in which they were riding on Sunday afternoon struck a culvert near Rockview. Mr. Shaffer was driving the car, a Nash touring model, and the rear wheels skidded. Mr. and Mrs. Shaffer and several friends were in the car, but none excepting the three mentioned were hurt.

HELPED GRANDMOTHER CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

ENJOYS GOOD HEALTH

Mrs. Page has resided in Penn's valley all her life and she didn't stop husking corn because she had passed the four-score mark. Women folks, in her days, worked considerably with the men in the fields and Mrs. Page has husked many bushels of corn. She enjoys that distinction, too. To keep a long record unbroken, she husked some corn last fall.

She possesses remarkably good health for a woman of her years. Several years ago she suffered a fracture of one hip and was a patient in the Bellefonte hospital. Her friends feared she would never outlive the affliction which so frequently proves fatal to those of advanced years, but her hardy constitution emerged from the ordeal and she gets about very well, though obliged to use a staff.

Her husband, Reuben Page, preceded her to the grave some years ago and Mrs. Page has been making her home with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Noll, of Linden Hall. Mr. Noll had work in Philipsburg the past winter and the Nolls resided there, Mrs. Page with them, the family returning to Linden Hall about 3 weeks ago.

The Noll home was crowded on Wednesday evening. Besides many of the relatives, a number of friends were present. The aged lady of honor received many pretty and valuable gifts, but the hearty good cheer and the remembrance by her friends and descendants was sweetest to her. She was also the recipient of many best wishes for more returns of the natal day.

Those from Bellefonte who attended the party included: David Barlet, Sr., whose wife (now deceased) was a daughter of Mrs. Page; Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Young and family, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Drye and family, Mrs. Grace Lilliedahl and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Miller. Sidney and Rex Barlet and families, of Tyrone, were also present.

Mrs. Page's descendants number 125 classified as follows: 10 children, 32 grandchildren, 72 great-grandchildren, and 11 great-great-grandchildren. They are scattered through Penn'svalley, in the West, one in the far south, and others in Jersey Shore, Tyrone, Altoona, Greensburg, Bellefonte and Boalsburg.

DAMAGED NEW FORD COUPE

Harry Zimmerman, of Mingoville, Was Taking Driving Lessons.

A new Ford coupe which he has just purchased new about two weeks ago, was considerably damaged on Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock when the driver, Harry Zimmerman, lost control and the auto upset.

Mr. Zimmerman was taking his first lessons in driving. He was alone at the time and was driving along the state road in Nittany valley, near the Benner Rumberger place, east of Hublersburg. The coupe ran into the ditch at the side of the highway and overturned, practically demolishing the top.

Mr. Zimmerman was fortunate in escaping uninjured.

NEW AGE LIMIT

Persons Over 18 Years Old Must Procure License to Fish.

Under the provisions of House Bill 358, signed by the Governor May 24th, it is now necessary for all resident citizens over the age of 18 to procure a license to fish in any of the waters of the Commonwealth, or the waters bounding or adjutant thereto.

The bill further provides that any amount in excess of $400,000 in any one year shall be used solely under the direction of the department of fisheries with the consent of the Governor for the purchase of lands and waters, and for the impounding of waters, and to make the same available for use by the citizens of the Commonwealth for fishing, hunting and forest purposes.

Grange Encampment.

The 50th anniversary of the Grange Encampment and Fair will be held at Centre Hall from Sept. 1 to 7.

PENN STATE ADMISSIONS

Although a large number of applications for admission to the Pennsylvania State College for next year have already been received, no admissions will be granted until July 1, according to W. S. Hoffman, Acting Registrar. This is in keeping with the policy that has been in vogue at State College for the past three or four years. Priority of application will not determine the selection of the incoming freshmen the choice being based mainly on the previous scholastic record of the applicant.

The size of next year's freshmen class cannot be determined until Penn State's appropriation from the Legislature is definitely settled, Professor Hoffman pointed out. It is hoped that it will be possible to admit at least as large a class as last fall when 1,000 were granted admission. Not more than 5% of the applicants will be admitted from outside Pennsylvania, while no one will be admitted with entrance conditions. According to the Registrar, Penn State is one of the few institutions of the country that enforces the latter ruling.

Uriah S. Shaffer, et ux, to John F. Royer, tract in Miles Twp.; $500.

Stella Kohlbecker, Admr., to Harry C. Kohlbecker, tract in Centre County; $666.

Logans Purchased Truck.

The fire fighting equipment of the Logan Fire Co. at Bellefonte was further increased recently by acquisition of the combination hose and chemical truck formerly used by the Hope Hose Co., of Lock Haven. The truck was first secured by the Emerick Motor Bus Co. in a deal in selling the Lock Haven firemen a White pumper. The truck will be overhauled and will be used to follow the triple combination pumper of the Logans to fires, picking up firemen along the route. The receipts of the annual picnic at Hecla Park on July 4th, will be used in paying for the truck.

MANY TREE SEEDLINGS

John W. Keller Reports Banner Year in Tree Production.

John W. Keller, chief of the bureau of silviculture in the department of forestry reports that 1 600 pounds of evergreen tree seeds, 1,200 pounds of hardwood seeds and 430 bushels of nuts and acorns were planted in the State nurseries last fall and this spring. This is the largest amount of seeds that has ever been planted in one season in the nurseries operated by the Department of Forestry. Most of this tree seed was sown in the nurseries at Mont Alto, Clearfield, Huntingdon and Greenwood Furnace.

The leading evergreen tree seed sown included white pine, pitch pine, Scotch pine, Norway spruce and white spruce. White ash, hard maple, tulip poplar, black locust, wild black cherry, black walnut and shellbark were among the principal hardwood seeds that were planted.

Keller estimates that 15,000,000 seedlings will be produced from the seed sown during the past season. This number of seedlings will reforest approximately 12,500 acres of waste land in the State.

The seedlings that will develop from these seeds will be kept in the nurseries until they reach a height of from 6 to 12 inches. They will then be distributed free of charge to private forest land owners for reforesting idle land in the State.

Want Cow Testing Asso.

A number of farmers in Centre County have become interested in a cow testing association and an effort is being made to organize one by June 1. Those interested are urged to give details of cost, plan of operating and benefits from the County Agent, J. N. Robinson. Some startling milk production costs have been learned from figures given in annual reports of the 35 cow testing associations in this state in which 8,630 cows were grouped according to production. The cows in the 4,000 pound group produced milk at a cost of 46¢ per hundred pounds less than the 3,000 pound group. The cows in the best group, the 9,000 pounds and over, cut the cost of production to $2.76 less per hundred pounds than the 3,000 pounds group. This is one of the best possible arguments to the Centre County farmer to weed out the free boarders from his herd and keep nothing but high producing stock.

Penn State's Largest Class.

Tentative figures that have just been given out by W. S. Hoffman, acting registrar of the Pennsylvania State College, indicate that Penn State will graduate the largest class in its history in June. It is expected that a total of 540 diplomas will be awarded to men and women graduates, which is three more than last year, the previous high mark, and almost 100 more than in 1921. Sixty-seven mid year graduates this year will swell the total to 607, compared to 604 last year when an equal number received degrees at the mid-year exercises. With the growth of the new graduate school, it is expected that more advanced degrees will be conferred this June than ever before. The Commencement exercises will take place on Tuesday, June 12, and the diplomas will be presented by President John M. Thomas.

The Nation at Work.

The Republican administration is making good so emphatically that argument is simply out of the question. Did you ever see a return to normalcy so quickly and so solidly? Right here in Centre County—even closer, right in Bellefonte—the industrial leaders are clamoring for more help. Practically every plant is operating under capacity because good men cannot be secured in large enough numbers to take care of the business. Did you ever know of men getting such good wages (the peak during the World war—which was not normalcy—excepted) for the return given? Compared with two years ago, there is a very remarkable change for the better. And big business men, leaders if you please, have given unqualified statements that this is only the beginning of a prosperous era. But you must hold onto the Republican administration and give it real support if conditions are to be fostered at their best. Every county that goes Republican at the coming election is indicating the pleasure of such times, the indication that there is a keen desire to have them continue. The good old United States is at healthy work, full time and overtime, under the G. O. P. and right thinking men and women will keep it there, where it belongs. Be a booster in the right direction.

Instructive Seashore Resorts Book.

A very nicely arranged, pretty, comprehensive and instructive book of the world famous seashore resorts of New Jersey is being distributed by the Pennsylvania Railroad system. It gives vivid descriptions of the leading resorts—Atlantic City, Cape May, Wildwood, Ocean City, Barnegat Bay, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove, and many others. There is a complete list of the hotels and rates are published for most of them. Two very plain maps clearly show the railroad lines and how adequately the Pennsylvania system serves the territory.

There are 191 pages in the book, each filled with desired information or pretty pictures of scenes at the seashore resorts. Any person who even contemplates making a trip to the Atlantic coast at one of the many points along the New Jersey coast, should have a copy of this book, which may be secured by writing to N. S. Longaker division passenger agent, P. R. R., Harrisburg, Penn. "The Republican" was given a copy by Ticket Agent Hutchison, at the Bellefonte station.

Lock Haven's First Circus.

Lock Haven will get its first circus on Thursday, June 14th, when the big four-ring wild animal show of Golden Bros. will exhibit in that city. W. H. Selvage, formerly with the Walter L. Main circus, who came to Bellefonte as the advance agent for Main's two years ago, is now with Golden Bros. Circus and was in Lock Haven last week arranging for the coming of this tented enterprise. It is not so well known in this section but carries a good reputation for animal acts and will likely be well patronized from Centre County, especially from Lower Nittany valley.

Landed Pretty Trout.

Wilson Rishel, a well known fisherman of Tylersville, claims the season record for his section. The fish put up a real battle. It was 23 inches long and dressed 3¼ pounds.

OVER THE COUNTY

A new smoke stack has been put up at the milk condensary at Spring Mills.

Employes of the Spring Mills silk mill held a picnic at Garrity's on Sunday, May 20.

Harry Wingard, game warden at Ingleby, was in Spring Mills and that section, recently, looking after the game.

Rote & Wingard have moved their saw-mill, west of Woodward, to the tract they purchased some time ago, known as Pine Hill, and are cutting some nice lumber.

A. B. Meyer was suddenly stricken by illness one day recently after returning to his home from work, as teller at the Millheim Banking Co. He is reported as much improved at this writing.

W. M. Zimmerman, of Milesburg, and Clyde Smith, "buddies" together in ocean travel who have just returned from Honolulu, being employed on a freight steamer, have been visiting relatives and friends in Centre County.

Aaronsburg is mourning the loss of one of the town's best men, G. W. Keister, who died on the 20th. He was one to whom many persons at some time or another were indebted for his kindness in their time of need. He was 70 years old and had been a lumberman and farmer.

T. F. VanAlstyne, who resides in Penn's valley, near Smullton, is planning a trip across the continent in his Ford touring car. He will be accompanied by his wife and child. They expect to pitch camp at night along the route and finally land in California, where they contemplate making their home unless the "Land of the Setting Sun" is not as desirable a home state as they have been led to think of it.

Most of the farmers have their corn planted now. Some who planted early were obliged to do the work over, cold ground and wet causing the ground to rot.

There is a report current that the Gramley school house, 2 miles east of Rebersburg, will be moved into Rebersburg, proper and give the town a better and graded school system.

Lusch Musser, of Fiedler, is puzzled over the cause of paralysis to which two of his cows recently became victims. One of the cows died. The peculiar malady has not been diagnosed.

For peddling "White Mule," Ernest Nale, of Coburn, a young man 20 years old, was placed in the Mifflin County jail in default of $300 bail. Nale is charged with carrying and selling the intoxicating drink at the Standard Steel Co's plant at Lewistown.

Materials for construction of two new concrete bridges near Potters Mills is being hauled by the state highway department employes. The bridge will replace the structure known as the Red bridge and the one over the creek at the approach to Potters Mills. These are two very desirable improvements in the beautiful drive between Bellefonte and Lewistown.

John L. Knisely, Bellefonte's really big postmaster, did a novel but altogether wise stunt last week in taking his touring car and filling it with parcel post packages, helping the parcel post delivery carrier to get by with the tremendous amount of this business. Bellefonte has a big parcel post business for the size of the office and it would be a splendid idea for the government to supply our popular postmaster with a light Ford delivery truck for this purpose.

Fanshawe's Strategy

By MORRIS SCHULTZ

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Un...

IF FANSHAWE had worshiped his wife a little less, his strategy might never have become necessary. We know the type of woman who was born to be an obedient wife, who wants some one to tell her what to do, and, when she has a complaisant husband, runs away with the bit between her teeth. That was Amy Fanshawe, as fine a woman as ever lived, if she had been handled properly.

She led Fanshawe a devil of a life. We live next door, and my wife was always pitying him.

"He waits on her hand and foot, and nothing satisfies her," she said.

"He's certainly a model husband," I admitted.

"I wish I had a husband like that—no, of course I don't," said Mary. "But seriously, dear, can't anything be done?"

"If Fanshawe had the nerve to give her a good hiding, things might move more smoothly," I suggested.

"Too drastic," said Mary. "I know what the trouble really is. He's a model husband, and that's something no woman in the world could stand. I'm so glad I haven't got one."

Whereat I kissed her.

Fanshawe used to come in and sit with us sometimes in the evening when his wife let him. My wife was very sorry for him. A few days after this conversation I went in and found the two sitting chumming up to each other before the radiator.

"Dear," said Mary, "Mr. Fanshawe and I have been talking over things."

A glance at Fanshawe's embarrassed face told me what things.

"It's really got to the point where I'll have to leave her, Ford," he said. "And the devil of it all is that I know I'm to blame. She's such a splendid woman, and I haven't handled her properly from the beginning.

"She was giving me a light on the difficulty, without knowing it, this morning. It appears I'm too quiet. Of course I have been good since I've been married, but—"

"Fanshawe," I said, "a little bee is buzzing in my brain. Come hither. Mary, dear, excuse me. I am going to save our friend's soul alive out of the pit—likewise his wife."

Mary was very curious, but I refused to divulge what I had said to Fanshawe, or what he had meant when he went away with a new hopeful expression on his face and the words upon his lips, "I'll try it."

But the next Saturday evening when I arrived home late, instead of asking me how much money I had lost with the boys Mary came running out to meet me.

"Oh, my dear, such a terrible thing has happened!" she cried. "Listen!"

I listened. I heard Fanshawe's voice next door raised in a sort of bellowing rumble. A minute later Mrs. Fanshawe came running out. She came to us in tears.

"Oh, such a shocking thing!" she panted. "My husband's insane!"

"Nonsense!" exclaimed Mary.

"Come and see. You, Mr. Ford, come and try to restrain him. Oh, I've never been in the house with an insane man before! Of course I shall leave him in the morning forever.

We went in. Fanshawe certainly did not look excessively belligerent. He looked up as we entered.

"Hello, there's ole Ford!" he hiccoughed. "And Mary—dear Mary—and my wife. Goo' li'l wife. Best wife in the world."

"Oh, what shall I do?" pleaded Mrs. Fanshawe in despair.

"Can't you get him to bed, Fred?" asked my wife.

"Not going to bed. Going shtay up and have nice gossip with wifey," said Fanshawe. "Best li'l wife in world. Haven't had real good talk shince we were married. Come along, darling."

He made a feint toward Mrs. Fanshawe, who shrieked and fled.

"Fred, get him upstairs for heaven's sake," my wife pleaded. She turned to Mrs. Fanshawe.

"You must spend the night with us," she said. "Fred will stay with your husband. Oh, he'll be all right in the morning."

"In the morning I shall go back to mother," Mrs. Fanshawe sobbed.

I helped Fanshawe, stumbling, up the stairs. When we were in his bedroom he turned to me with a wink. "Did I do well?" he asked.

"Fine," I answered. "I guess you've pulled the trick, old man."

The Fanshawes are a very happy couple now. Mary has been let into the secret. Some day Fanshawe may tell his wife. He hasn't got to the point yet.

Fire Prevention.

Danger of fire and many of the annoyances incident to the freezing of water pipes are minimized today by the use of electricity instead of the cruder heat formerly applied to thawing.

The newest of thawing devices is a contrivance which may be hauled from place to place, being mounted on an automobile truck or wagon. This consists of a generator set, complete with switchboard and rheostat, and having lengths of flexible cord which are used to carry the electricity to the frozen pipes.

In ordinary use the pipe thawer consumes about the same amount of heat as a domestic flatiron. It is capable of thawing 40 feet of three-inch pipe in eight minutes; or 800 feet of ten-inch pipe in two hours.

"Millions Now Living Will Never Die"

There is special significance in the troublous days through which the world has passed since 1914. Out of these events will come greater developments, involving all nations and peoples. The Bible accurately foretold present conditions. Its prophecies regarding the future will be filled with equal exactness. The outstanding hope held forth in the Scriptures is the hope of eternal life, and the realization of this hope is near at hand.

LIFE, perfect, limitless, with a regenerated race, on a restored earth, with a corrected climate and life-perpetuating food, under a Government which will satisfy the righteous desire of every living creature. And it's here, at the door! The portals of the new age are swinging open and many will enter and never die. The old order is passing away, the new order is here. Christ Jesus is taking unto Himself His great power and beginning His reign. The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand.

AIR FACTOR IN FUTURE WARFARE

France Believes Peace of World Lies in Hands of Science.

FLYING EGG LATEST NOVELTY

The popular French war ace, Charles Nungesser, is preparing to try out the formidable new egg-shape machine which he has been building in secret.

Designed to attain the highest speed ever registered and equipped with a 700 horse power Fiat engine, the machine is at first destined for scientific research. Nungesser is an admirer of and an experienced pilot in motorless aviation. While he has always experimented with gliding flights in an ordinary airplane with a locked propeller, he has already made ample study of currents at low altitudes in slow moving machines, and his aim now is to see how the air acts at high altitudes when swept with an object covering close on 300 miles an hour.

If, as Nungesser believes, the air in such cases becomes more rigid, and thereby affords greater security to airplanes, he considers the future of flying lies in exceedingly rapid machines able to attain great heights.

That he will successfully beat all existing speed records he has no doubt, but he takes little notice of this, for, as he remarks: "Any one can have the speed record if they can find a machine made of strong and resisting material and in which it would be possible to place one or more 1,000 horse power engines."

Equipped With V-Shaped Wings.

Nungesser has introduced novelties in the flying egg such as the emplacement of the wings and their fabrication. Silk cloth and canvas have been done away with and the two small but heavy wings which fit the egg-shape cockpit are entirely made of wood so interwoven as to afford the necessary resistance when traveling at great speed.

To afford greater stability to the practically tailless monoplane the wings are drawn forward V-shape at an angle of 130 degrees. The Fiat engine is placed in the fore part of the machine and drives an all steel propeller. High above the engine a steel cupola has been erected to shield pilot and observer or mechanic. The cockpit is composed entirely of interwoven wood several inches thick with a circumference of one meter and a half and at the rear is a huge rudder close on three meters high and a half a meter wide. The rising and lowering rudders have been done away with at the rear of the machine and instead have been placed on the wings at a point where the planes close into the cockpit. The usual stabilizing alerions at each extremity of the wings have not been moved.

If experiments are successful Nungesser hopes to transform it either into a large and comfortable passenger carrying machine or else into a deadly army chasing machine. The Frenchman during the war was one of the few pilots to drive a chasing machine equipped with a 37-millimeter gun firing through the propeller. He believes he will be able to put one 47 millimeter gun as well as four machine guns in the "flying egg."

Hopes to Invent Cheap Plane.

Nungesser has other ideas which, if they develop successfully, would make him a leading figure in aeronautics. One of his cherished dreams is to make aviation so cheap and popular that in not too many years to come the sky will be covered in flying machines. To this purpose he has also built a small amphibious machine which he is also to test soon on the Seine in Paris. The first of this kind of airplane was built in thirty-six days, and it is intended to turn them out in series and standardized.

Aviation as the chief weapon of any future war continues to be a topic of great interest in Paris. When Lieut. Pilot H. Chretien says that the future peace of the world lies not in the hands of diplomats and politicians, but of the scientist who can obtain the most perfect mastery of wireless vibrations, he has a large audience.

H. Chretien has just issued a pamphlet warning France and the rest of the world that there is a very grave danger of future air mastery by Germany. Although the public has been getting used to such warnings since the armistice, M. Chretien's booklet bears the stamp of approval of military and air experts like Marshal Foch, M. Flandin, former under secretary of state and president of the Aero club of France; M. Andre Michelin, patron of all air progress, and General Niessel, commander of the Ninth French army corps.

According to Lieutenant Chretien the world will some day see a huge battleplane, pilotless and conducted solely by wireless from a base off possibly 2,000 miles. This plane's control may even be linked in such a way that from one series of vibrations a veritable armada of planes loaded with high explosive bombs, death-dealing gases and incendiary compounds, may be sent from Berlin, and when hovering over Paris, by merely pressing a button in the control office in Berlin their burden may suddenly be let loose and a large portion of the French capital be ruined in a few hours.

To Cut Wireless Air Control.

With this pilotless armada constantly before his eyes, Lieutenant Chretien produces the only solution of the problem he has created, namely, the discovery of some method of cutting off the wireless control at its source. Apparently this is going to be a difficult task, for in discussing French pilotless aviation recently, M. Branly, the French inventor, insisted that so delicate are the instruments used in control work that it would be virtually impossible for an enemy to send out wireless waves and interfere with the movement of the French planes.

Only by broadcasting parasite vibrations—and thereby crippling his own use of wireless for other purposes—could even minor interference be obtained. And, for the present, what applies to French planes must be taken as equally applicable to German pilotless machines.

But should any nation obtain perfect mastery of wireless vibrations, according to Lieutenant Chretien's thesis, it would mean the elimination of air fighting in warfare, and the return to fixed battle lines, entrenchments and possibly to the old system of fortifications strong enough to withstand the assaults of Big Berthas.

Destroy Enemy Control.

With superiority of control, it would be possible for a French control operator, on receiving word of the arriving over the frontier of a German pilotless squadron, to wait until the planes were over an open field and then press a button. Immediately every plane would turn its tail upward and nose dive to earth, bombs and all, without accomplishing the destruction it had been sent out to do.

It would even be possible to take the control entirely out of the German sending station's power, and turn the loaded planes back on the German capital, dropping a few tons on other German towns while en route as a warning that pilotless aviation had not proved a success. But all this is hypothetical, and in the domain of electricians and engineers, and even Lieutenant Chretien is willing to admit that such achievement is still very distant. He insists, however, that the plane of the future is to be controlled by wireless, and will probably resemble a combination of Noah's Arks, a broad flat tail, with a battery of up to a dozen 1,000 horse-power motors, all covered by some metal which will resist shrapnel or machine gun attacks.

CHAMPION CAKE BAKER TELLS HOW SHE DOES IT

She is Mrs. Joseph J. Hardgrove and her first prize cake was a coconut layer; the prize, a kitchen cabinet.

Here's her recipe: Cup and a half of white sugar, half cupful of butter, cupful of sweet milk, two and three-quarters cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, whites of four eggs, vanilla to taste. Ice and sprinkle with coconut, and use "good common sense and a hot oven."

WOMAN FORGOTTEN IN CELL

Deprived of Food and Water for Four Days When Records Are Altered.

"My Lord, man, where've you been?" were the harsh words that greeted Police Lieutenant Lawson of Philadelphia when he opened one of the cells in his station house. On investigation the officer learned that the prisoner, Mrs. Elizabeth Perry, had been arrested, imprisoned, and forgotten. She had nothing to eat or drink for four days.

Mrs. Perry was charged with intoxication. After her name on the station house slate was written "to be discharged." The words "to be" had been rubbed off, and as a result no one had looked into the cell.

They Were Fairly Matched

By MORRIS SCHULTZ

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

"THIS claim of yours is all nonsense, you know, Pilkoff," said Samuel J. Martin warmly. "I never infringed your patent, I used the results obtained in our own laboratory. Now you demand fifty thousand dollars when I don't owe you a cent."

Martin had invited Pilkoff up to his camp in Maine to discuss the matter. Pilkoff had been pestering him for weeks, making his life miserable. Added to this the Martin company was on the rocks. Pilkoff didn't know that.

"Let's have another glass first to soften the asperity of our meeting," suggested Pilkoff.

He poured out two glasses of cider and the two men sat down at the table and sipped them.

Pilkoff had certainly invented a process of vulcanizing rubber at one-fourth the expense. Martin admitted that. "But d—n it, Pilkoff," he shouted, "I tell you I can confront you with the man who invented the process for me, in my own works!"

Pilkoff as good as called him a liar, and Martin, a powerful man, leaped to his feet in fury.

"Pilkoff, if you weren't the wenzened little rat you are, I'd break every bone in your body for that!" he shouted.

"Sit down," said Pilkoff, with an evil grin. "How much are you prepared to pay?"

"Not a cent," answered Martin.

"Then you won't live the night out."

"Eh?" stammered Martin.

"The cider that you have just drunk contained a deadly poison. It kills in about two hours. No, you'll be dead before you can reach the village. The minute you move about it starts to circulate. Better sit still."

Martin's jaw dropped; the financier stared at the other. He knew Pilkoff for a desperate man.

"However, there's an antidote, Martin," Pilkoff resumed. "A sure cure. It must be taken into the system. Get your check book and write me a check for fifty thousand. I'll give you enough to hold you till tomorrow. Then I'll mail the check to my bank, and then I'll give you the rest, enough to complete the cure."

"What if I refuse?"

"You'll be a dead man in two hours' time, Martin, but it isn't a painful death. The doctors won't find any trace of the poison in your system. Oh, I'm safe enough. And, of course, I shall still carry through my suit—and win."

"You cowardly murderer!"

Pilkoff smiled and bowed ironically. "I am only getting back my own, Martin."

Martin put his head in his hands and brooded silently for a minute or two. Then he raised it. "I'll do it," he said.

Pilkoff drew a revolver from his pocket and covered him. "No tricks," he said significantly.

Martin brought his check book from his desk and took out his fountain pen. "I can trust you as to the antidote?" he asked.

"Absolutely. You see"—Pilkoff grinned—"I may have another invention to sell you later on."

Martin scowled and wrote out a check for fifty thousand. Pilkoff took it. "It looks all right, Martin," he said. "If you have played me a trick—oh, I'll get you. I'll strike without warning next time." He put the check in his pocket.

"The antidote," said Martin impatiently.

"Half the antidote," Pilkoff corrected, taking a powder from his pocket and putting it into Martin's glass. "The rest tomorrow—after that check has been deposited in my bank and—drawn out by me."

Martin gulped down the draught.

In the morning Pilkoff tramped off to the village and posted the letter to the bank. He returned to find Martin gloomily awaiting him.

"The rest of the antidote."

"This afternoon. That check will arrive about four. Then I'll give you the rest. Time enough. Feel all right, don't you?"

Martin grunted morosely. The two men loafed about the camp. At four o'clock Pilkoff came up with the rest of the powder. Martin drank it down greedily.

"You're sure it will complete the cure?"

"Absolutely, my dear fellow." Pilkoff smiled. "You see, it's perfectly harmless. There never was any poison."

Martin threw back his head and laughed.

"It is funny, isn't it!" said Pilkoff.

"A scream," said Martin. "You see, I've gone bankrupt, and your check has gone to—the official receiver."

Originality.

If I could give an account of all that I owe to great predecessors and contemporaries, there would be but a small balance in my favor.

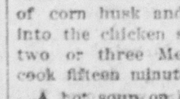
In point of fact, we are all collective beings, do what we may; for how little have we, and are we, that we can strictly call our own property? We must all receive and learn, both from those who were before us, and from those who are with us. Even the greatest genius would not go far, if he willed to draw everything out of his own internal self. But many very simple-minded men do not comprehend that; and they grope in darkness for half a life, with their dreams of originality.—Goethe.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

Let's find the sunny side of men, or be believers in it,
A light there is for every soul, that takes the pains to win it.

WHAT SHALL WE HAVE FOR DINNER.



A simple plum pudding which is nice to have on hand is the following:

Plum Pudding.—Take one quart of milk, nine milk crackers, one-half cupful each of molasses and sugar, one cupful of raisins, soak over night and in the morning add such spices as desired and steam four hours. Warm up as needed and serve with any pudding sauce.

Tapioca Pudding.—Take one tablespoonful of tapioca, the minute variety; one tablespoonful of corn meal, salt to taste, and one pint of milk mixed with one-half cupful of molasses. Bake and stir while cooking. Flavor with nutmeg or cinnamon. This is the time of the year when water cress is most enjoyed.

Water Cress and Grapefruit Salad.—Cut the stalks from a bunch of cress, carefully pick over to remove all discolored leaves and cover with cold water in which is dissolved a little salt.

Pare and remove the pulp from grape fruit, cut into small, thin slices Put into a salad bowl with three tablespoonfuls of olive oil, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, a little paprika and salt to taste. Mix gently, not to crush the fruit. At serving time put the cress into a towel and swing vigorously to remove every drop of water, mix with the fruit and serve at once.

Tamales.—Boil a fowl until tender, salt and season with onion or garlic while boiling. Remove the meat from the bones and chop fine, add a bit of garlic and a generous quantity of cayenne pepper. Make a thick paste of corn meal, salt and boiling water. Form the meal into rolls the size of a finger and incase each in the corn meal paste. Wrap each tamale in the inner husk of corn, tie with a strip of corn husk and drop the tamales into the chicken stock to cook. Add two or three Mexican peppers and cook fifteen minutes.

A hot soup on a cool night, a dish of scrambled eggs, or a rarebit prepared with tomato makes a good hot dish.

TASTY GOOD THINGS

There is no dessert or salad so well liked as that prepared from grapefruit.

This may be served either as a salad or dessert.

Grapefruit Salad.—Cut grapefruit in halves, take out the pulp and mix with chopped pineapple pulp and maraschino cherries with sugar and the maraschino sirup to taste. Garnish with the cherries after filling the shells with the fruit.

Hominy Baked With Cheese.—Put alternate layers of cold boiled hominy and grated cheese in a baking dish, add enough milk to moisten, cover with buttered bread crumbs and bake until well-heated and the crumbs are well-browned.

Chicken Salad.—Mix one pint of diced chicken and one cupful of celery, a little chopped cabbage from the tender white center; mix with highly-seasoned mayonnaise and serve on head lettuce.

Tartar Sandwiches.—Chop three sardines, add a cupful of boiled ham ground, three small cucumber pickles, a little chow-chow with a teaspoonful of catsup and a quarter of a teaspoonful of mustard; add a dash of lemon juice and mix well. Spread on buttered bread.

Walnut and Cress Salad.—Lay the kernels of thirty English walnuts on a layer of sliced oranges. Squeeze lemon juice over them and let them stand for 24 hours. Serve on a bed of fresh crisp water cress with a rich French dressing poured over it.

Peas and Peanut Salad.—Stew a cupful of fine canned peas in their own liquor until it is absorbed. Cool, add a half-cupful each of celery and chopped peanuts, six stoned and chopped olives and a little grated onion. Serve with a rich mayonnaise or a highly-seasoned boiled dressing. Serve on lettuce.

Bird's Nest Salad.—Color cream cheese with a little green fruit coloring, add cream to make it soft enough to mold, then roll in the size of small eggs. Shred lettuce and form it into nests, arranging three or four of the cheese eggs in each. Serve with any desired dressing.

SANTA'S SECRET

Santa Claus was in his workshop. He was chuckling over the letters he had received.

"The Very Material."

There was one from Lucy asking him for a doll with a blue hood. Just why Lucy wanted a blue hood for her doll he didn't quite know.

But he would see that the doll wore a blue hood. In fact he had the very material which would make a most charming hood.

Then there was a letter from Gwen. Gwen was very anxious for a pair of new skates. She wanted the kind that came all fastened on the boots and she thought she was big enough for them by now. She did so hope dear Santa Claus would think so too.

Santa Claus smiled to himself as he read that. Yes, he thought Gwen was big enough this year.

Then Teddy wanted a train with an engine which had headlights. That would be particularly nice, he thought. And he hoped Santa Claus had been well all through the year and hadn't caught any cold up so far North. He had had a cold himself for a while in the fall but it was all gone now.

Then there was a letter from Rose. Rose was a friend of animals. She was so devoted to them and loved to know all the interesting things they did. Rose wanted a book about animals. He would be sure that she had this too.

There was a letter from Anne and she wanted a book about the fairies. Well, she would have this book by all means. Anne hoped that Santa Claus would find time to get home so he could have a good hot dinner on Xmas day. That was very kind and thoughtful in Anne.

There was a letter from Maggie and she asked for dates and grapes and oranges and candy. Dear little Maggie! How he did love her. And Maggie was always asking for good things to eat. Maggie was so cunning and so sweet.

Little Eugene had asked for a train. He wanted one with stations and bridges and signals and tunnels if that was possible, but if not, he would be glad to have a train of cars and an engine, or just an engine and coal cars and one coach would do.

That was like little Eugene. He gave Santa the chance to get a very big and beautiful present if he wanted to (or could do so with all of the things he had to attend to) or he would be quite happy and quite satisfied with something very much simpler.

Santa Claus was very fond of him. He was so perfectly natural and cheery and jolly.

But as Santa Claus read the letters over again and made notes on his great lists which he now had hanging along the walls of his workshop he said to himself: "It does Santa's heart good to read the letters but oh how they amuse me, too. They tell me that they've been so good and of course I'm delighted to hear it. And they tell me that their mothers and their daddies, too, say they have been so good. Of course that is very nice.

"But Santa remembers when his letters came from these very daddies and mothers and how they said that their mothers and their daddies said they had been good!

"So I'm sending this secret to some of my children this year and that is that Santa remembers these letters from the mothers and daddies when they were young.

"With My Love."

"Oh, Santa is delighted beyond words to hear of goodness, and above all he loves kindness and unselfishness. But the children can know this secret—that their daddies and their mothers too, had to try to be good and didn't always find it as easy as easy could be.

"Though none of them, and none of you, ever really made Santa Claus look sad. And that is what Santa couldn't bear.

"For, as you all know, Santa Claus is kept young by the smiles and the laughter of children and he loves to stay just as he is now.

And I'm going to send these messages with my love and with the secret about the daddies and the mothers to the children this very evening."

HOW TO ATTRACT BIRDS TO HOME

Feathered Friends Drawn by Proper Shelter and Food.

LOCATION OF BIRD HOUSES

Birds appeal strongly to the interests and affections of mankind. Not only do they charm by their graceful forms, harmonious colors, sprightly actions and usually pleasing notes, but they have an even more important claim upon our esteem because of their great economic value. Birds feed upon practically all insect pests. They are voracious, able to move freely from place to place, and exert a steady influence in keeping down the swelling tide of insect life.

"The means of increasing the number of birds about the home are few and simple," says W. L. McAtee in a bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture on how to attract them. "They comprise adequate protection and the provision of suitable nesting places, food and water. It is planned in a series of publications to recommend practicable methods of attracting birds about homes in the various parts of the United States. Protection is the prime requisite for increasing the number of birds in any area, and the results of protection are in direct proportion to its thoroughness.

"Although a considerable number of our native birds build their nests on the ground, the majority place them in trees or shrubs, either in holes or on the limbs or in the crotches. Shrubbery and trees for nesting sites, therefore, are essential for making a place attractive to birds, and a double purpose is served if the kinds planted are chosen from the list of fruit-bearing species given further on. Shrubs should be allowed to form thickets and should be pruned back severely when young, so as to produce numerous crotches.

Natural Bird Houses Going.

"Constant removal of old trees and modern tree-surgery have resulted in a great diminution in the number of tree cavities, the natural homes of most of our hole-nesting birds. Fortunately, most of these birds will utilize artificial nest cavities, or bird houses.

"As a rule, birds do not like to be crowded, and if a place is studded with bird houses only a few of them will be occupied. Birds not only do not want bird neighbors too near, but are impatient of human meddling and therefore should be granted as much privacy as possible during the actual incubating and brooding.

"Nothing has a more potent attraction for birds during hot weather than drinking and bathing places. The birds' water supply should be a pool not more than a few inches deep, the bottom sloping gradually upward toward the edge. Both bottom and edge should be rough, so as to afford a safe footing. A giant pottery saucer is an excellent device, or the pool may be made of concrete, or even metal, if the surface be roughened. The bird bath may be elevated or on the ground if in an open space where skulking enemies cannot approach too near. A water supply is appreciated in winter as well as in summer. If running water cannot be provided, that supplied should be warmed to delay freezing.

Supplying Plenty of Food.

"Food supply is a vital factor in bird life and the most important single offering that can be made in efforts to attract birds. It is important to note that an ample supply of food prior to and during the nesting season tends to increase the number of eggs laid and also the number of broods in a season. Bird food may be supplied in two ways—by planting trees, shrubs and herbs which produce seeds or fruits relished by birds, and by exposing food in artificial devices. The most familiar phase of the latter method is winter feeding.

"During the season when the natural food supply is at its lowest ebb, birds respond most readily to our hospitality. Winter feeding has become very popular, and the result has been to bring about better understanding between birds and humankind. The winter foods commonly used include suet or other fat, pork rinds, bones with shreds of meat, meal worms, cut-up apples, birdseed, buckwheat, crackers, crumbs, coconut meat, cracked corn, broken dog biscuits or other bread, hemp seed, millet, nut meats of all kinds (especially peanuts), whole or rolled oats, peppers, popcorn, pumpkin or squash seeds, ray or boiled rice, sunflower seeds and wheat."

VEILS MASK SHY EYES

Fashion Leaders Discuss Return of Face Covering.

Veils, which came back some time ago as a sort of softening decoration around the edge of women's hats and lately began to stream slightly in the breeze to the rear, as they did many years ago, now are creeping down a few inches below the front edge of hats so as to mask shy eyes.

Some of the Paris fashion leaders suggest that veils soon may be worn to cover the face entirely, as was the custom a generation back, when a well-dressed woman would as soon have thought of going in the street barefoot barefaced.

BALL "MADE" VANDERBILTS

Magnificent Entertainment Gained Family Formal Recognition by Recognized New York "Society."

The Vanderbilts obtained their first secure foothold in New York's leading society by a great fancy-dress ball given by Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt in her beautiful Fifth avenue house on the evening of March 26, 1883. It surpassed in splendor, in beauty, in brilliancy, and in luxurious and lavish expense any scene before witnessed in New York. But two or three of the leaders of New York society, notably Mrs. William Astor, had never called upon any of the ladies of the Vanderbilt family.

According to the generally accepted story, soon after the announcement of the forthcoming ball, but before the formal invitations had been issued, Miss Carrie Astor, the only unmarried daughter of Mrs. William Astor, organized a fancy dress quadrille to be danced at the ball by several young ladies and gentlemen, it being taken for granted by the Astors that, as leaders of society, they would, of course, be invited. Mrs. Vanderbilt heard of this, and stated in the hearing of some friends that she could not invite Miss Astor to her ball, as her mother had never called upon her. This reached Mrs. Astor's ears, and soon after she called upon Mrs. Vanderbilt. She and her daughter were invited to the Vanderbilt ball.

Thus did the ball break the last barrier down and the Vanderbilt family was firmly established among New York's social leaders.

WEALTH IS MADE PORTABLE

East Indians Convert Savings Into Jewelry With Which Their Clothing Is Lavishly Decorated.

The city of Darjeeling, on the border between northeastern India and south Tibet, is a great market place for a wide countryside, where the westerner in the person of the Englishman comes in contact with Tibet, Bhootia and Nepal.

Except for some savage or semi-savage peoples, there is nowhere else, perhaps, such a lavish and widespread display of barbaric jewelry on the person as one sees in Darjeeling. As is the habit of all Indians—indeed, of most Asiatics—the bulk of the natives' wealth, converted into jewelry, is carried about. Every Sunday morning in the little stone-paved marketplace of Darjeeling congregate a human medly, a clothing exhibition, an agricultural display, an outlay of second-hand desiderata, a jewelry Vanity Fair. There is the tarboosh of the Hindu, the plaited straw of the laborer on the plantations, the fur-trimmed cloth cap or the Tibetan mountaineer; face types that grade all the way from South Indian Tamil swarthiness to the Parsee and the high caste indoor Brahmin; from the "Caucasian lineaments" to the pure Chinese, says a writer in the Christian Science Monitor.

Milton Writing Lycidas.

Lycidas came to Milton's imagination or at least to paper, in a very perfect form. He writes the first 14 lines, and then tries the flower passage, which was evidently haunting his thought. He sets it down once, crosses it all out, and then begins over again. Line 146 was nearer inspiration as first written: "the muske rose and the garish columbine"; but perhaps it does not express his feeling for the flower, or it did not sound appropriate to have so gaudy a flower about the dead. Ruskin calls 148 "mixed fancy and imagination"; the first version, "every bud that sorrows liverie weares," is also mixed, but perhaps less objectionable than the form we are familiar with. After the flower passage is to his mind, he takes a fresh sheet, and, commencing a poem once more, writes to the end with very little recasting, except at 58-62, which he thrice revises. Save for these two difficult parts, Milton seems to have written Lycidas with little premeditation, and hence with ease.—Laura E. Lockwood, in "Modern Language Notes."

First "Woman's Rights" Exponent.

Saint Birgitta, the only marked personality of Roman Catholic Sweden (before the Reformation) known to the popes, is said to have been the first apostle of "woman's rights" the world has known. She pleaded for "mixed orders" and "mixed convents" to insure the frank and practical cooperation of men and women, monks and nuns, in aiding suffering humanity. Her canonization, however, was due more to the merit of her pilgrimages to Rome and Jerusalem and to her services in bringing about the return of the popes from Avignon to Rome than to her pious and charitable endeavors, or to the example of ardent faith which endeared her to her countrywomen, and by which she was better known in her own country.

NEW OVERLAND RED BIRD

Fills Long Felt Want on Part of American Motoring Public.

The enthusiastic reception given the Overland Red Bird, the newest addition to the Overland family has been remarkable for the glowing comments on an achievement, acknowledged by a critical public to be one of the most complete models of its kind introduced in motoring circles this year.

Everywhere this latest creation of the engineering and designing departments of the Willys-Overland organization has met with undisguisedly popular favor and reports from salesrooms spread across the continent indicate that this car, singly, has attracted greater crowds of interested motorists than any display put on the floors in some time.

Accordingly to L. G. Peed, General Sales Manager of the Willys-Overland, this Overland Red Bird will unquestionably span a gap in the line of Overland motor cars, which is now universally recognized as being complete. This new model is one of the outstanding, finest examples of automobile construction that has yet been shown to the American motorist.

Dealers are clamoring vociferously for large allotments to satisfy the demand already noticeable in every section of the country. This demand typifies the insistent call of the present day automobile purchaser for a car that leaves the factory sufficiently equipped to eliminate further buying of "extras," and in this respect the Overland Red Bird gratifies in every sense the ideal of the American family that is looking for distinction without undue extravagance.

The Willys Overland Company sensed this long felt want and in bringing out this new offering, answered a clear unmistakable call for just that comprehensive qualification in a car, and the factory in anticipation of the big demand to follow when this model was placed on the market, is utilizing every available manufacturing resource to supply this demand.

ATTRACTIVE LINES

The Overland Red Bird is an exceedingly beautiful car to look upon. The body lines are distinctly smooth and harmonious incorporating a combination of riding comfort and fleetness. Being finished in a pleasing Mandalay Maroon, something radically different from any car on the road today, the appearance of this car is doubly enhanced.

This delightfully refreshing color is stimultaing without being conspicuously glaring and obtrusive It is the spirit of refinement in color blending. Glistening nickeled radiator, with bar radiator cap, nickeled head lamps, wind shield stanchions, scuff plates, door handles, and frame in rear curtain light, all add to the discriminative appearance.

Plus these distinguishing characteristics, is a Khaki top with red binding and welts, making the whole effect singularly noticeable and calculated to imbue in the possessor of an Overland Red Bird a genuine pride of ownership.

COMFORT CONSIDERED

In the designing of this new model, comfort for the passengers has been coupled with the general appearance. Nothing has been left undone that could promote a feeling of relaxation when riding. A wheel base of 106 inches is provided, with a spring base of 136 inches. This alone insures perfect freedom from annoying jolts.

The car is tired with 30 by 3½ straight side, Fisk cords and a larger and more powerful engine is there to keep the Red Bird well at the head of any procession on any kind of grades and warrant quick get-away in traffic jams.

The body itself is roomier, and the seats are wider and deeper. Red Spanish grained upholstering sets off the interior of the car to a nicety. Coupled with these features, the equipment includes wind shield wiper, nickeled bumpers front and rear, hand grips on the doors, spare rim and tire carrier, speedometer, dash light, and other fixtures, all of which enter into the consummation of a noteworthy achievement in economical motoring.

Such is the new revelation in automotive workmanship which reflects creditably on the wide experience and expediency of the Willys-Overland Company, whose cars are handled in Bellefonte by R. N. Van Ingen.

Circus Employe Hurt.

The Walter L. Main circus, which went from Bellefonte to Lewisburg and thence to Danville, has been having trouble with the employes, it appears, and this was emphasized when Albert Shepard, colored, was taken to the Geisinger hospital, at Danville. Discharged on short notice, according to report, the negro returned and demanded money he said was due him, but received instead a broken nose, a fractured ankle and lacerations and bruises when roughly ejected by huskies apparently called by the circus for the purpose. What would have happened in Bellefonte if the Penn State students who went to the show in the evening and just made themselves at home in the reserved seat section had been disturbed by this bunch of huskies?

Coal Slump in General.

"The Black Diamond," the official organ of the coal industry for more than thirty years, says the coal trade is in the midst of its annual spring slump and demand is falling off very noticeably in spite of all instructions to buy now.

MAY AFFECT ROCKVIEW

"Immediate steps should be taken to relieve the gross overcrowding at the Eastern and Western Penitentiaries. The following steps are necessary to make this possible immediately: Repeal act of March 31, 1960, which provides that 'whenever any person shall be sentenced to imprisonment at labor by separate or solitary confinement for any period less than one year, the imprisonment and labor shall be had and performed in the state penitentiary for the proper district' and provide in its stead that when overcrowding, etc., exist that the inspectors of the state penitentiaries and the inspectors (however designated) of county penal institutions, workhouses, etc., may make arrangements satisfactory to both for the transfer of such prisoners, the transaction to be consummated through the courts, the department of welfare, if it seems desirable, to be the intermediary to effect the transaction.

"If such a bill were enacted at this session there would be available in the county of Allegheny over 600 cells in the workhouse, and in the house of correction, Philadelphia, about 800, a total of '1400 cells vacant,' while the two penitentiaries, east and west, show '1200 prisoners' who are 'doubled up.'

"This situation calls for prompt, efficient and courageous action—administrative, legislative and judicial. Unless such action is taken the interests of the state will suffer and serious disaster may occur. The state had an instructive and humiliating experience in the outbreak in the Western Penitentiary in July, 1921, which stands as a warning."

MILLHEIM HIGH WINS

Awarded Graham Base Ball Trophy in League.

The Millheim High School base ball team has been awarded the beautiful silver trophy, presented by George Graham, of State College, as champions of the Centre County High School League.

The High School League enjoyed a very successful season. In the Western division, Hublersburg defeated Howard, Blanchard and Milesburg. In the Eastern division, Millheim won over State College, Centre Hall and Spring Mills.

In the 3 game series to decide the winner, Millheim defeated Hublersburg in 2 games. The scord last Thursday was 4—3 and on Friday 7—3.

B. H. S. Won from Philipsburg.

The Bellefonte High School base ball team has been making telling strides this spring and has won many close contests against some splendid material. The defeat administered the Philipsburg High School nine last Friday on the Scott field at Philipsburg was one of the sort that makes interesting comparisons. Philipsburg and Bellefonte High School athletes have always been keen on winning and have frequently staged some of the best contests in this section. The Philipsburg base ball team has been playing winning ball, too, and was defeated only once this season before the game on Friday. The Cooper team from Clearfield County managed to win that game. Of course, a great clash with a close score was expected on Friday but our boys played it differently. They ran up a score of 7—2 Runs were scored for Bellefonte by Fisher, Rutl, Sones, Boodle, Harshberger and Robb (2).

Injured by Screw Driver.

G. F. Mark, of Loganton, came near losing sight of his right eye and sustained a very painful cut when struck by a screw driver thrown by his brother Jay. The latter was working on his automobile, about the motor, and the screw driver came in contact with the electric current. The sting he received caused him to throw the screw driver quickly and without discretion. It struck the brother just below the eye and cut a deep gash.

Mule Caused Miner's Death.

John Latz, 45 years old, a native of Germany, employed in the Laura coal mine, near Centre, was smothered to death on Friday afternoon by a fall of earth and rock from the roof of the mine, which dropped when a mule kicked away a supporting prop. He was coming out of the mine to return to his home when the mule became unmanageable.

Plans to Grow Potatoes.

The great demand for disease-free potato seed in Pennsylvania during the past 4 years is leading more growers to produce it in rapidly increasing quantities. One man who has seen the need for creating this demand is G. F. Miles, until recently assistant to Prof. E. L. Nixon, plant disease specialist at State College. He has secured a farm near Coudersport, Potter County, and will raise 150 acres of disease-free seed this season.

Played Opening Game Saturday.

So as not to interfere with local plans for observing of Memorial Day at State College, the Centre County Base Ball League, changed plans of playing all opening games of the season on the 30th and the first game was played between Bellefonte and State College, at the latter place, on the High School diamond, the score being 15—5 in favor of Bellefonte.

INTERESTING CONTROVERSY

Prof. James R. Hughes Not Willing to Abandon Principle.

A very interesting controversy has been going on between the Western Union Telegraph company and Prof. James R. Hughes, Headmaster of the Bellefonte Academy, ever since the company failed to deliver an important message in February, which failure he claims cost him $40.

"The facts in the case," declared Mr. Hughes in a statement, "are as follows:

"On February 1st, of this year, I received a letter from the coach of St. Francis College basket ball team of Loretto, Pa., stating that his squad would arrive in Bellefonte at 1:26 P. M., Friday, Feb. 2. I was surprised because I had no game scheduled. This was due to a misunderstanding. The Bellefonte base ball club had the armory engaged for that date for a dance and on Saturday Feb. 3, the annual athletic banquet of the Academy was to take place. Therefore, it didn't suit to have any basket ball game played with my team that week.

"I telegraphed the St. Francis College coach at 5:55 P. M. on Thursday, Feb. 1, informing him that no game could be played that week.

"To my utter amazement and disappointment, the St. Francis team came on the 1:26 train on Friday, Feb. 2. I asked Coach Loughran if he had received my telegram. He replied, 'No.' I asked him when his squad left Loretto and he replied, 'At 11 o'clock this morning.'

"Well, this not only puzzled but disgusted me—that a telegram filed at 5:55 P. M. Thursday had not reached its destination by 11 o'clock on Friday morning, a distance of not over 75 miles from Bellefonte. However, I tried to make the best of it and arranged to play the game at 1 P. M., on Saturday, Feb. 3, so that the visitors could take the 3:10 train for home. This plan was not only very troublesome but expensive. The game could not be advertised sufficiently and the hour at which it had to be played meant no audience. A guarantee of $40, in addition to all local expenses of board and lodging had to be met.

"When Coach Loughran returned to Loretto, he found the telegram waiting for him at the college postoffice. It had been mailed to him from Cresson at 8:30 Friday A. M.

"This mailing of a telegram, the very contents of which indicated that it had been sent to head-off the college team and thereby save expense, was an annoying incident.

"I wrote to President Carlton in New York city, setting forth the situation and requesting him to have the $40 loss made good. Mr. Carlton thanked me and promised an investigation. The investigation led the officials to claim that the Cresson operator had tried to raise the college by telephone and therefore the company was not at fault and was obliged to decline the claim."

Mr. Hughes argues that the patrons of the Western Union should not pay for what he claims to be the failure of their company to give satisfactory service. He said: "Their operators should be informed as to what places cannot receive messages direct and when and where messages must be telephoned or mailed; that their failure to inform the Bellefonte operator or other operators of such conditions is responsible for such a mistake. I would have telephoned to Loretto myself had I been properly informed.

"Final refusal to honor the claim was received by me this week. I am surprised at the company's attitude from a business standpoint. I can save that $40 many times over by writing where I have formerly sent telegrams.

"A great principle is at stake. As an illustration, suppose that a football squad might be expected from a distant point with the promise of a large guarantee and that suddenly a prominent man on the local faculty dies, rendering the game undesirable. A telegram is sent immediately to head-off the scheduled team, is accepted at the local office without any explanation that it would be telephoned from a certain point and it then fails to reach its destination in proper time. The squad comes at great expense and then—

"Is the company to be held responsible for the delay?

"If it is, why shouldn't they be obligated to refund the money to the school management?

"If the telegram service is to be substituted by telephone and mail service, is it not a right of the millions of patrons of a company to be apprised of such conditions in time to be able to choose which service they prefer?

"These are questions I think the public generally will be interested to consider. I, of course, do not expect to press the company legally for such an amount but feel that I will be the gainer, financially, in the long run."

Try Matrimony Again.

Only one license was issued for marriage the past week by Register Sasserman and that was to George Washington Crain, of Osceola Mills, and Mary M. Cole, of Philipsburg. Mr. Crain is 73 years old and this is his third venture in marriage. His first wife died in 1911 and his second in August, 1918. Mrs. Crain was married once before, Mr. Cole passing away in July, 1915. She is 65 years old.

WORLD'S CONFERENCE

Prominent Speakers Will Deliver Addresses in County.

Among the prominent speakers who will address the meetings of the World Missions Conference in Centre County, June 17 and 18, will be Dr. L. B. Wolf, secretary of the Foreign Mission board of the United Lutheran church, with headquarters in Baltimore and New York. Dr. Wolf has been in the most intimate touch with the whole missionary enterprise of the world for 30 years. He served successfully in India for a long period of time.

Rev. Arthur M. Sherman, dean of St. Paul's Divinity School, Boone University, Wuchang, China, has served in that country for 24 years and represents the Episcopal church. Rev. Sherman is home just now on furlough.

Rev. F. T. Cartwright, missionary in China; Rev. J. B. Matthews, who has been in Malaysia since 1915, and Rev. Lynn H. Rupert, working as a missionary in India since 1920, all of the Methodist church, will be here.

The Conference will open with a sermon in every county church, or combination of churches, Sunday, June 17. Monday morning a ministers' meeting will be held in Bellefonte. Monday afternoon meetings for women at State College, Spring Mills and Bellefonte, while a mass meeting for men will be held in the evening at Bellefonte and Spring Mills.

BALL PLAYER BREAKS LEG

Samuel Weaver Hurt in Slide in Opening Game of Season.

In making a home plate slide in the base ball game of the Centre County league season yesterday, Samuel Weaver, of the Bellefonte club, had the misfortune to badly fracture one of his legs. Weaver has been employed at the aviation field. His injury will lay him up for some time. It is proposed that one or more exhibition games be played to raise a fund to remunerate him for doctor's bills and loss of time. Spicer, of the State College club, was struck in the face by a fly ball which he tried to catch, but lost it in the sun.

Bellefonte defeated State College, 7 to 2. The game was closely contested in the early innings and until Bellefonte started to pound the visiting pitcher.

Millheim won a double-header over Centre Hall, taking the morning game 7 to 5, and the afternoon game 8 to 0.

Waite—Brugger.

One of the big social events of Unionville for the season will be the wedding of Earl Waite, of Stormstown, and Miss Margaret Brugger, one of Unionville's best known young women, on Saturday at noon. The wedding will be at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brugger. Many guests have been invited.

Snow Shoe Won Games.

At the Memorial Day event at Snow Shoe Driving park yesterday afternoon, the Snow Shoe base ball team won both the morning and afternoon games. The score in the morning was 7—5, and in the afternoon, 10—4. Karthaus played hard, but was unable to stop the strong Snow Shoe aggregation. A fair attendance was reported.

Fell Through Skylight.

W. Harvey Miller, well-known tinner, was very painfully but not seriously injured yesterday. He was on the roof of the addition being built to his garage property, occupied by R. N. Van Ingen, the Overland and Willys-Knight dealer, stepped on a piece of paper covering a skylight, and landed about 20 feet below.

Arrested as Auto Thief.

Clayton Watson was arrested at Snow Shoe on Monday by W. H. Myers, Clinton County detective, charged with stealing an automobile parked while the owner, Brady McKibben, was attending a carnival near Lock Haven. Watson denied taking the car.

The Scrap Book

TOOK NOTES ON FINGER NAILS

How English Ecclesiastic Obtained Excerpts From Probably Oldest Vellum Manuscript in Existence.

The Vatican library includes a large number of bibliographical rarities. Among them is the famous Codex Vaticanus B, described by Doctor Scrivener as "probably the oldest vellum manuscript in existence." This contains the Septuagint version of the Old Testament and one of the earliest known texts of the New.

In 1845 Doctor Tregelles, armed with a letter from Cardinal Wiseman, visited Rome with the sole purpose of studying this manuscript. At last he succeeded in obtaining the coveted permission, but two prelates were assigned to the duty of watching him and they would not even allow him to open the volume without searching his pockets and taking away all implements by which he could copy the text.

They interfered with any prolonged study, and often took the book hurriedly away from him. By a little craft and patience, however, Doctor Tregelles succeeded in making a few notes on his cuffs and finger nails.—Manchester Guardian.

RABBITS HAVE FIERCE "JAG"

Usually Well-Behaved Animals Affected by Prolonged Feeding on Fermented Corn Mash.

Hundreds of rabbits, drunk and disorderly, defied citizens of Pasco, Wash., and ran pell-mell into standing automobiles, frantically gnawed at telephone poles and did some dancing. Meanwhile near Peshastin, flocks of hawks and hoot-owls were reported on an extended jag, resulting from the dining on the dead bodies of ground squirrels which ranchers had poisoned. The Pasco police in making a raid on a still outside the town dumped several barrels of corn mash, in an advanced stage of fermentation, out on the sage-brush-covered prairie. The embryo moonshine at once became the diet for whole families of jack-rabbits. Many folks concluded the bunnies had contracted rabies, prevalent in the Northwest, and asked for aid from the federal biological survey camp. The farmers near Peshastin are using some poison-soaked grain to rid the fields of squirrels, which has the effect of forcing the rodents to come out of the burrows seeking water. These have been the chief attraction of hawks, owls, buzzards and other flesh-eating birds of prey. Crows and magpies, usually desirous for a meal of squirrel, wisely leave the poisoned rodents alone, but are killing and eating the jagged owls.—Montreal Family Herald.

Game to Decide Libel Suit.

A championship football game which was played early last spring is to be played over before one Berlin judge, who thereupon will decide a libel suit. The winning team brought action against the sporting editor of a Berlin paper, who wrote that the players looked like convicts and that their brutality would make a bullfight look tame. The same judge has been called upon frequently to decide upon the morality of plays, and invariably ordered special performances before forming a judicial opinion.

Pickerel Too Greedy.

An Ontario reader of the Toronto Globe found a large dead pickerel on the beach in Rainy River district, which had evidently died from attempting to swallow another fish that was too large. The pickerel measured twenty-seven inches long and the victim it had tried to devour was fourteen inches long of which four inches protruded from the pickerel's mouth. The smaller fish had been swallowed headfirst.

Mrs. Marvin, of McVeytown, and Mrs. Swigert, of Belleville, were callers at the Samuel Fleming home on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Kepler, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Fisher, departed on Monday for a 10 days fishing trip on Young Woman's creek in Lycoming County.

Ed Roan and wife, in his 7-passenger King car, left last Monday morning at 4 o'clock and made a record run to Lake Michigan, arriving the following evening at 7 o'clock. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Rossman, of Pleasant Gap.

The burning up of a 7-passenger Overland car on the state highway near Rock Springs last Saturday about 3 P. M., blocked travel for some time. Many cars stopped. The Overland had been looked over at the Rossman garage a few minutes previously and seemed all O. K. The flames spread so rapidly that the passengers barely escaped. The car was owned by Mr. Thompson, of Ohio, and was on its way to Williamsport. The same afternoon another car carried the Thompsons to their destination.

Seventy-five of the Witmer clan gathered at the J. B. Witmer home at White Hall last Friday for the annual family reunion. The main feature was the serving of a delicious dinner on the barn floor, from the choicest the farm and market could afford. Mr. and Mrs. N. O. Dreibilbis, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Dreibilbis, were guests of honor. The afternoon was spent in games and rendering of music. It was voted to be the best yet held and to have another next year, date not yet set.

Benore

There is a show, a festival or a party, something every night for the young folks—just the same as when we were young.

O, Mr. Editor: Please tell Howard Eby, of State College, that he can come over in two weeks and pick cherries, plenty of them, from the trees on his vacant lot here. The fruit looks promising everywhere.

On Sunday afternoon we were down to J. W. McKivison's, who resides on the Knockey farm at Juniata Junction. The whole family is sick, have something similar to "flu" and the aged grandmother is suffering most. She has also a cancer on the right side of her face which has been troubling her for two years and almost the entire side of her face is affected.

Albert Mattern, employed by the American Lime and Stone company at Bellefonte, was at home over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Haugh and son Hubert, of State College, and daughter, Mrs. Mary Kilpatrick and her son John, of Centre Hall, were over Sunday visitors among old friends here.

Will Mark Roads to College.

Roads within a radius of 75 miles of State College are to be marked with proper signs, according to information given out during the week-end by the department of public information of the college.

Howard

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. H. Spigelmeyer, son Paul, daughter Anna and Miss Vonda Johnston, motored to Lock Haven last Thursday to do some shopping.

Miss Alma Pletcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Pletcher, has bought a new Ford sedan from L. D. Berry.

Miss Mary Hoffman, of Pitcairn, who has been visiting at the home of W. L. Cook, the past several weeks, has returned to her home.

L. D. Berry, proprietor of the Howard Auto Supply Co., expects to receive another car load of Ford automobiles from Pittsburgh the first of June.

Earl Neese, who has been employed in the Chevrolet factory at Flint, Mich., came home Sunday morning to spend a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Neese.

Mack McAllister, who has been employed in the Buick automobile factory at Detroit, Mich., came to Howard Sunday morning to visit his lady friend.

T. A. Pletcher and family motored to Williamsport Tuesday to spend the day.

Doyle Yearick and family left for Philadelphia to spend the week end with relatives.

All members of the alumni association should not forget the annual alumni banquet will be held in honor of the class of 1923, in the High School room, Friday evening June 1st. at 8 o'clock.

Hubersburg.

Miss Ruth Bartley has gone to Lock Haven to work.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster Jodon and family spent Sunday with the former's sister, Mrs. Paul Carner and family.

Quite a number of our people attended the base ball game at Millheim on Thursday afternoon, and also at Hecla Friday afternoon, Millheim winning in both games.

Mrs. William Harshberger, daughter Rosa, and son Jay; David Whitman and James Carner, attended the festival at Pleasant Gap on Saturday evening.

Miss Adeline Heckman spent Sunday with friends in Tylersville.

The Senior class went to Bellefonte last Wednesday and had the class picture taken. Afterwards they motored to Lewistown for a joy ride.

Those who attended Memorial Day services at Tylersville were: Frank Weaver, John Yarnell, Russell Heckman, Robert Yarnell, John Heckman and Jay Harshberger. Jay is a very kind-hearted boy and took them over in his new Star.

Harry Clevenstine and wife, of Bellefonte, came down and took his mother, Mrs. Mary Clevenstine, for a joy ride Sunday afternoon.

Miss Myrtle Cox has returned to her home.

Miss Jane McCalmont Dead.

Miss Jane McCalmont, one of Bellefonte's highly esteemed residents, died on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock from pneumonia. She was 80 years old on March 21st. Born near Jacksonville, she was a daughter of James and Elizabeth Sterrett McCalmont, and was the last member of a family of six children. The deceased was a lifelong member of the Presbyterian church and her pastor, Rev. David R. Evans will have charge of the funeral services at her home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be made in Union cemetery. Miss McCalmont's ancestors were Scotch-Irish, she being a descendant of a family who moved from northern Ireland in 1760 and settled near Jacksonville, and she remained at the homestead farm until 43 years ago, since which time she had resided in Bellefonte.

Mrs. Elizabeth V. Mann Dead.

Mrs. Elizabeth Victoria Mann, widow of Badock Mann, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Blair, near Fillmore, on Saturday morning at 2 o'clock. The deceased had been residing with the Blairs for some time. She had been seriously ill for one week, although suffering prior to that time from infirmities due to her advanced age. She was 81 years old on March 1. Her husband preceded her to the grave 13 years ago. Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Blair, and one son, William E., of Ballejo, Cal.; 13 grandchildren and 4 great-grandchildren. The remains were taken to Ashtabula, O., on Sunday for interment, Mrs. Mann having been a native of Summit County, O.

Death Caused by Over-Exertion.

Campbell Daubenspeck, an aged resident of Pittsburgh who had come to Penn's valley recently, with his wife, to spend the summer with their son, Rev. Daubenspeck, pastor of the Aaronsburg Lutheran church, died Friday morning from over-exertion. The deceased had attended the ball game between Hublersburg and Millheim High Schools in the three game series championship scheduled and died during the night. He owned a farm near Pittsburgh and had followed tilling of the soil, but because of his advanced years, he rented the farm for this season and came to Aaronsburg. His widow, three sons and one daughter survive. The remains were sent to Pittsburgh on Monday for burial.

Mrs. Robert H. Olmstead Dead.

Mrs. Robert H. Olmstead, well known in Bellefonte and State College, died in a hospital in St. Paul, Minn., on last Thursday, according to word received by friends here. Mr. and Mrs. Olmstead have their home in State College closed, having gone to St. Paul several months ago where Mr. Olmstead was taking a special course of instruction. He was formerly the County Farm Bureau Agent here and then went to Susquehanna County to take charge of the Olmstead homestead farms, being succeeded here by J. N. Robinson. Having an attractive offer from the Pennsylvania State College to again enter the extension field, he accepted and returned about two years ago, residing in Bellefonte for some time until able to locate at State College. In his work here he has become widely known over the county and his many friends will extend their sympathy in his hour of bereavement. Mrs. Olmstead was born at Factoryville, her maiden name being Carrie Cobb. She was 28 years old and death was caused by complications. Surviving are her husband and one son, "Bobbie," three years old; her mother, Mrs. Nelson Cobb, of Factoryville; and two brothers, Herbert Cobb, until recently County Farm Agent in Susquehanna County, and Elman, of Forsythe, Montana. Funeral services were held at Sairdale, Pa.

Jacob Reish Dead.

Jacob Reish, a well known and highly respected citizen, passed away at his home near Baileyville, last Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock as the result of a stroke of paralysis ten days previous. He had been in poor health for several years but was able to be about the farm. Deceased was a son of Peter Pontius and Mary Shoemaker Reish, early settlers. He was born March 16, 1850. When a lad he located in Ferguson Township. The autumn of 1891 he was united in marriage to Mrs. Elizabeth Homan. To them two sons and one daughter were born: Rev. John E. Reish, of Loganton, W. A., and Celista, at home, who with the widow mourn his loss as do also two sisters and one brother: Mrs. Emma Calvert and D. K. Reish, of Altoona, Miss Mary Reish, of Boalsburg and one half-sister, M Laura Miller, of Boalsburg, and three grandchildren. He was a member of the Lutheran church from his youth and a tiller of the soil all his life. He was a kind obliging neighbor. Brief funeral services were held at the home and continued in the Lutheran church at Pine Grove Mills. Burial was made in the new cemetery. His pastor Rev. J. E. English, officiated, assisted by Rev. H. D. Fleming.

Mrs. Roland Smith Dead.

"The Winlock News," of the state of Washington, coutains the following obituary notice of interest to our readers: "Mrs. Rowland Smith, an old resident of Lewis county, and one of the pioneer residents of Winlock, passed away at the age of 85 at her home Saturday morning, April 14. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the family residence under the direction of Leland Cattermole. The deceased was born as Margaret Snyder, in Hartleton, Pa., Nov. 11, 1837, where she was married in 1859 to Rowland Smith, who passed away four years ago, and with whom she lived 60 years. In 1877, with her husband and family, she left Pennsylvania for the Texas frontier. From there they traveled in prairie scooner across the plains, arriving in Winlock in 1879. She united with the Christian church when a young woman. Mrs. Smith is survived by six children; one sister, Mrs. Matilda Bechdel, of Blanchard, and one brother, Thomas A. Snyder, of State College.

W. C. Dietz Hurt.

W. C. Dietz, widely known Blanchard merchant, was struck by a car driven by Dean Dunes, a young man of Blanchard, and sustained very painful injuries last Thursday afternoon. Kunes had a foot gasoline feed installed on his car and, in attempting to put his foot on the brake pedal, got it on the gas feed, his auto dashing forward and striking Mr. Dietz, who was cleaning out the gutter in front of his store. Before it could be stopped, two wheels of the car passed over Mr. Dietz. An examination failed to reveal any broken bones, but he has suffered considerable pain since the misfortune.

Miss Elizabeth Runkle Dead.

Miss Elizabeth Runkle, of Centre Hall, one of that borough's best known residents, died on Tuesday morning from neuralgia of the heart. She was 77 years old and is survived by two brothers: John L., of Tusseyville, and Samuel, at home. The funeral services will be held on Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock at the home and burial will be made in Tusseyville cemetery.

Reimburse School Districts.

Governor Pinchot has signed an Act providing reimbursement by the State to certain school districts for transportation costs for pupils sent from home districts for the purpose of better classification. Transfers of pupils must be approved by the State Council of Education before such costs will be paid.

Must Register Auto Titles.

Under a law enacted by the Legislature all owners of automobiles and motor trucks must register the title of each car, the fee being $2.

LATE COURT NEWS

Salty Sentences and Heavy Fines for Several Convicted.

Herman Whiles, indicted for assault and battery, attempt at rape, and highway robbery. Prosecutrix, Mary Dunitze. The defendant pleaded guilty and sentence was suspended on payment of costs.

J. C. Martin, for larceny by bailee, prosecuted by G. H. Gates. From the testimony it appears that the prosecutor sold the defendant a team of horses on a lease and also a note therefore, which note the prosecutor sold to another. The defendant was sold out by the Sheriff and this team of horses sold. At the close of the Commonwealth's testimony the Court gave binding instructions for the defendant.

Timko Kapeluch, for manufacturing and selling intoxicating liquor. The defendant pleaded guilty and was sentenced to pay the costs and serve three months in the county jail.

Peter Adominies, Jr., for larceny, by H. A. Marks, who charged him with taking a Chevrolet automobile radiator with motor meter, which the defendant denied, but a verdict of guilty was rendered. Friday morning the defendant was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution and to imprisonment in the Western penitentiary for not less than two years nor more than three years.

Alberta Austin, indicted for selling intoxicating liquor without a license.

William Austin, indicted for selling intoxicating liquor without a license. These cases were tried together strenuously but resulted in a verdict of guilty of both Mr. and Mrs. Austin. Mr. Austin was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution, a fine of $500.00 and serve two years in the county jail. Mrs. Austin received a similar sentence but was permitted to go home under parole to straighten out their business affairs and then go to her home in Boston.

Jenny Kapeluch, indicted for manufacturing and selling intoxicating liquor. She is the wife of Timko Kapeluch, who early in the week pleaded guilty to the same charge and the defendant admitted that she had stated after the arrest of her husband that she had manufactured and sold the liquor, for the purpose of saving her husband, but in court strenuously denied that she had manufactured or sold any. Verdict of not guilty but pay the costs.

L. E. Kidder vs. George M. Raines, assumpsit. Verdict for the defendant.

Earl H. Gingerich vs. Earl H. Gingerich and Rome F. Gingerich, assumpsit, in which there was no defense. Verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $1080.

Rome F. Gingerich vs. Earl H. Gingerich and Rome F. Gingerich. Verdict rendered for $1080.

J. Irvin Wagner vs. James Leathers, trespass, continued.

J. Frank Krumrine vs. Robert Coll, trespass, and grows out of an automobile collision on the State Highway between Lemont and State College last summer. Verdict on Friday forenoon in favor of the defendant.

P. S Richards vs. Roy Stiver, assumpsit, continued.

Frank A. Carson vs. Cyrus Brungart, appeal. Verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $50 for taking illegal fees, the question of law as to whether or not there could be any recovery under the law, to be argued at Argument Court.

Court adjourned on Friday afternoon.

THOMPSON HEAVY LOSER

Salona Lumberman Loses Two Mills and Lumber by Fires.

John R. Thompson, the widely known lumberman who resides at Salona, met recently with two heavy fire losses, the first resulting in the destruction of his sawmill and considerable lumber in Sugar valley, the other, last Friday morning, in the burning of his practically new sawmill and some lumber at Salona.

In neither instance was insurance carried as the rate on sawmills is extremely high and Mr. Thompson also said he would have been required to employ a night watchman, which makes insuring out of the qdestion. The loss in Sugar valley was $3,000 and at Salona $1,500. Prompt response and good work by the Hand-in-Hand hose company of Lock Haven kept the Salona loss at a minimum. The firemen saved 100,000 feet of logs.

The mill that was destroyed on Friday morning was purchased two years ago and installed on the site where another mill had been destroyed by fire for Mr. Thompson.

Memorial Services.

Memorial Day was fittingly observed in Bellefonte yesterday. The parade formed and the veterans of the Civil war headed the line of march, chief marshal and aids followed, then the Odd Fellows band, the ex-service men, the Spanish-American war veterans, Troop B, Headquarters Troop, Boy Scouts, the firemen—and it was inspiring the watch the Logans and Undines march in groups side by side—the Girl Scouts and the Camp Fire Girls. At the Union cemetery, Rev. Wilson P. Ard delivered the address and the usual services were followed. A firing squad visited the Catholic cemetery.

NOTICE.

In the Court of Common Pleas of Centre County. No. 23, September Term, 1915.
In Re; Bird Coal & Iron Company.
DECREE.

NOTICE is hereby given to all stockholders of the BIRD COAL & IRON COMPANY, that a petition has been presented to the Court of Common Pleas of Centre County, Pa., by Christiana C. Bird, principal stockholder, and by J. H. Rockefeller trustee for the said company under Act of Assembly of Pennsylvania approved April 15th, 1891, P. L. 15 for permission and authority to be given by the said Court to said trustee to enter into a said option agreement with the Lehigh Valley Coal Company for the sale to the latter at the price or sum of $20.000.00, [private sale] of all the coal in the "A" seam upon the Graham tract containing 283 acres and 123 perches situate in Snow Shoe Township, Centre County, Pa., as also in these seams between the "D" and "A" seams upon said tract, under and subject to the terms of the said option agreement fully set forth in the said petition, and for authority to consummate the said sale. In the event the Lehigh Valley Coal Company exercises the said option.

Upon presentation of said petition the said Court granted a rule upon all stockholders to appear in said Court on the 19th day of June, 1923, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M. and show cause, if any they have, why the said Court should not authorize the trustee to enter into the said option agreement and to consummate the said private sale, in the event the Lehigh Valley Coal Company exercises the said option. In the event of non-appearance on that day, the Court will enter a decree in your absence, authorizing the same agreement to be executed and sale to be consummated, HEREIN FAIL NOT.

"RESOLVED, that the Associated Business Men of Bellefonte, approving the slogan 'GIVE OUR RAILROADS A CHANCE.' fully endorse the program of the railroads to provide Adequate Transportation service in 1923 and pledge full co-operation in the effort to anticipate the over-flow of business in the peak period by purchasing NOW, coal and other commodities, as far as practicable, that as a rule move in the fall and winter months."

We advise our friends to heed the above resolution that was passed at the last meeting of the Associated Business Men of Bellefonte and "GIVE OUR RAILROADS A CHANCE," thus profiting by the reduced price and quality of bituminous coal.

The Mysterious Dividends

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Helen Wright dropped the check and looked dreamily into the fire. "I wonder who Paul Day can be—it must be—it is seven years since father died and left me alone, and once every year I receive this check, signed by Paul Day and no clew to follow save the scrap of attached paper, which always bears the same message, 'Dividend on investment in Day-Wright mine'!" She smiled as she retrieved the envelope from the wastepaper basket and studied the postmark.

"Big River, Cal.," she deciphered, and went for an atlas, which she studied closely. "I will go and find it," she told herself that night as she prepared for bed.

Paul Day, big, bronzed and handsome, emerged from the shaft of his mine and discovered a young woman seated on the end of an empty ore car. She wore linen riding clothes, and twirled a stiff black sailor hat on one hand.

"A tourist," and Day groaned inwardly, but his eyes were satisfied with the vision of her, sitting there, cool and lovely with the afternoon sun shining on her fair head.

He removed his hat and paused an instant.

"It may sound inhospitable," he said with a pleasant smile, "but I am wondering if you are expecting to meet any one here?"

"Why?" she asked curiously.

"Because the mine is not being worked, and there is no one here except myself. People have been here from time to time, looking for some of the men who used to work for me, but they have all gone." His eyes turned away and he gazed off into the remote distance; he might have been searching for something unattainable, for his eyes were sad just then.

"This is the old Day-Wright mine, isn't it?" the girl asked, stepping down from the car before he could reply, and coming closer.

"Yes," there was surprise in his tone.

"Do you own it?" she wanted to know. "Please tell me all about it."

"My name is Day—my partner, Wright, died a few years ago. You see, he and I worked it together for awhile and it looked like a good thing; then his health failed and he went home to the East. I understood that he had a motherless little girl, who lived with a grandmother—he was a fine fellow, who loved the open country, a fair-square man. I missed him. Some one sent me word of his death."

"Didn't his heirs claim a share in the mine?" she asked.

She liked his deep laugh that followed her question.

"The lead was a false one, the gold pinched out shortly after his departure and we had never drawn up any legal papers."

"Yet, you remain here and work it?"

He shrugged. "I have been able to scrape out a little ore, enough to make a living for myself, while I am working for Giant Mines. I am a mining engineer."

"Thank you for telling me so much," she said. "May I ask one question—it may sound impertinent, but—"

"Ask any question," he replied.

"Does the Wright-Day mine—"

"Day-Wright," he corrected.

"Does the Day-Wright mine pay dividends?"

Now he blushed like a schoolboy. "Why—why do you ask that question?"

"I wanted to know!" she laughed frankly, and there was a very soft light in her brown eyes.

"It pays dividends—sometimes," he admitted.

"Annual dividends?"

"Yes," a little sharply.

"Does the little girl of your partner—does she receive a dividend, too?"

"Yes."

"All of it?"

"Yes," stiffly.

"Why, all of it? Forgive me, Mr. Day, but I must know. Is she needy?"

"I am not sure, but I suppose so. Wright gave me to understand that he had nothing of his own, and that his mother cared for the little girl. I assumed that he had nothing to leave her. He was a good friend of mine and the dividends will go on as long as I am alive, or as long as she needs them," he ended grimly.

At the risk of offending him beyond pardon, she asked one more question. "And when you cannot scrape another bit of gold from the mine, I suppose you will keep on working for the Giant company, and continue to send the child her dividends?"

To this he made no reply, but stood staring off across the ravine to where the sun was sinking in a flame of glory.

"It is getting late," he said after awhile, but she had disappeared, and peering down the trail that wound through the ravine, he saw her mounted on a white pony making for the settlement at Big River.

A week later he received a telegram calling him to New York to confer with the vice-president of the Giant Mines. So he locked the doors that led to the shaft of the abandoned mine, shut up his little cabin nearby, and caught the first train for the East.

An office boy led him to a private room where the door bore the vice-president's name—H. E. Wright. The name was a common one, and when he entered he did not connect it with the man who had been his partner. A girl rose to meet him—the girl who had sat and talked to him that day at the mine, and whose face still haunted him. His heart leaped at sight of her.

"I am the vice-president of the Giant Mines," she told him when they were seated. "My father was your old friend—and I am the little girl you have been sending dividends to all these years—I am Helen Wright, Mr. Day."

He shook hands with her dazedly.

"I have never needed the dividends you sent, my friend; but I have hoarded the money and you must take it back. I am rich, and I am so happy to meet father's friend; and to have you for my friend," her eyes were full of tears as their hands clasped.

Of course, they loved each other. The old mine revealed a hidden store. Paul Day became president of the Giant Mines, Inc., and they both collect dividends of happiness from their ideal love for each other.

"GRAFT" MATTER OF COURSE

Seemingly Merely a Part of Ordinary Business Routine, With the Merchants of China.

Two Englishmen once were discussing the honesty of various nations and they agreed that fewer bills were protested in Spain than in any other country.

"Have you had any dealings with the Chinese?" one Englishman asked.

"Rather," the other exclaimed. "In negotiating a large contract the chief representative of the Chinese objected to the quality of the goods. I suggested that another power in the East would be glad to get the goods. This made no impression on him. Then I saw what was the matter.

"'How much do you want to report that the material is all right?' I asked him.

"'Two hundred and fifty thousand francs,' said the yellow man.

"When I brought him the money he counted it calmly and finding that two notes were torn he asked me to replace them. I took them, saying that I would change them. But he held on to the notes, telling me that he would keep them until I returned. After I had brought the new notes he took them gravely and signed the contract with great dignity."—Kansas City Star.

Desert of Alamogordo.

One of the natural wonders of New Mexico is the Alamogordo, or Tularosa, desert, according to the Detroit News. It is a sandy plain, measuring from 100 to 125 miles from north to south and from 35 to 50 miles from east to west, and it represents, in the opinion of many authorities, the upper surface of a gigantic block of the earth's crust that sank after the deposition of the cretaceous strata. It is surrounded by an elevated border and on the east, especially, the cliffs rise sheer to a height of 1,000 feet. The curious Organ mountains are on its southern border.

Within the plain, where floods of lava once swelled up, are vast deposits of gypsum, which forms as white as snow, which the wind drives into vast drifts. The vegetation is peculiar and highly interesting to botanists.

Folly and Wisdom.

Blaise Pascal, one of the great thinkers of France, asks, "Whence comes it to pass that we have so much patience with those who are maimed in body, and so little with those who are defective in mind? It is because the cripple acknowledges that we have the use of our legs; whereas the fool obstinately maintains that we are the persons who halt in understanding. Without this difference in the case, neither object would move our resentment, but both our compassion."

Matter of Form.

Click—He is a great man to cling to old forms.

Clack—When I saw him dancing in the cabaret last night he was clinging to a very young one.

BRITAIN NOW NATION OF CHECK WRITERS

Practice Helps Banks to Improve Financial Situation of the Country.

The English are beginning to believe their habit of using checks more and more, and cash less and less, to pay their way through life has been one of the factors in the recent spurt of the pound in its race to catch up with the dollar. Of course it has not reached the point where people write checks indiscriminately, just as a matter of national pride, but all the newspapers have been giving serious consideration to the thought that the check writing habit, ever becoming more common, has helped improve the financial situation.

The idea appeared in print the other day when the London Bankers' clearing house announced that of the sums now paid into the city banks only seven-tenths of 1 per cent come in currency and coin, all the rest being transfers of credit by check. Not many years ago the percentage of cash deposits was several times higher than today.

It has been pointed out frequently of late that the use of checks instead of cash allows banks usefully to employ perhaps larger sums than otherwise might be possible in piling new stones upon the nation's economic structure.

The English, so their newspapers say, are more given to the check habit than other people, and this despite the fact that each check is taxed twopence. A checkbook cannot be had for the asking, as in America; it must be bought and paid for. Even housewives make general use of checks when they go to market, and, as many of the large banks have branches, there is usually a bank within walking distance of the home. The high fees for postal money orders make it cheaper to remit by check for amounts of over one pound, and this, too, has encouraged the check habit.

Psychologically some observers question whether the habit is a good one from the standpoint of thrift, since many people who would think twice before spending a certain sum out of their pockets do not hesitate to write a check for the amount; just as it often seems easier to tell a store clerk to charge a purchase to one's account than it is to shell out the actual coin. But others contend that the increasing bank clearings—they amounted to more than £37,000,000,000 in London alone last year—show not only economic betterment but also that the average Englishman has preserved his honesty as well as his belief in the honesty of his countrymen.

BERLIN WOMAN JURORS HARD

German Judge Says Fair Ones Are Severe on Own Sex.

German women, recently accorded the right to sit on juries in criminal cases, have shown an inclination to impose even more severe punishment than men, particularly in cases in which the defendants themselves have been women.

"I always feel sorry for a woman defendant," said a Berlin judge commenting on woman's entry into the jury box, "when a majority of the jury is composed of the fairer sex. My experience so far has been that the women have less mercy than men and hold out for verdicts accordingly."

Ever since Germany became a republic and women gained the right to the ballot, the question of permitting them to sit on juries has been brought up for discussion from time to time, as there are many opponents to the advancement of women's right among the public generally and especially in the legal profession. It was long contended that women were too tender hearted to listen to sordid details of criminal cases. But the women demurred to these contentions, kept up the struggle for admission as jurors and, after nearly four years, have finally won their point.

RESEARCH VESSEL TO SAIL

Will Take Fifty Scientists From the British Isles.

A 2,000-ton schooner is being fitted out for a ten months' voyage of adventure and research in little known parts of the world by the Scientific Expeditionary Research association, an English association of scientists of all classes. The vessel probably will sail from London in July. She will take 50 passengers and already the applications are in excess of this number.

From London the tentative route is to the Canary islands, Isthmus of Panama, Galapagos islands, Easter island, then westward to a series of islands within the tropics and back through the Panama canal.

Man Dies Trying to Save Hat.

Pursuing his hat, which blew from his head while he was riding in an automobile, Alfredo Pasquinelli, thirty-seven years old, lost his balance after climbing over the fence along the Boulevard of the Allies, at Pittsburgh, Pa., and fell to his death down a precipice. His body was found half buried in a pile of coal at the bottom of the embankment.

Brother and Sister Pals Even in Death.

Devoted in life and almost inseparable for 80 years, Hiram Schwartz and his sister, Miss Elizabeth Schwartz, of Elkville, Ill., died within two days of each other. A double funeral was held.

He came up smiling—use to say,
He made his fortune that away.
He had hard luck a-plenty, too,
And settled down and fought her through,
And every time he got a jolt
He just took on a tighter holt,
Slipped back some when he tried to climb,
But came up smilin' every time.

GOOD THINGS FOR EVERY DAY

This is the time of year when a "boiled dinner" is appreciated. Of course it is odorous, but it is worth it. A few minutes with open windows and doors will carry away all trace of the cooked vegetables. It is a good plan to keep the kitchen door closed and a window lowered from the top while the cooking is going on. Cabbage, rutabagas, carrots, potatoes are the vegetables usually cooked together. A nice, fat piece of corned beef with a piece of fat pork makes a good flavor. The meat is put into the vegetable kettle and cooked for an hour at simmering temperature before the vegetables are added. The cabbage is cut into quarters, and if small two will be needed for a family of five who are healthy and like boiled dinners. A good, big rutabaga, weighing three or four pounds, should be cut into wedge-shaped pieces; the carrots, if small, may be cooked whole; otherwise they are cut into halves and quarters. The potatoes are best left whole, and should be of uniform size. Cook slowly for an hour or more, then serve with vegetables arranged in alternating colors around the platter, with the meat in the center. The hash, which may be made from the left-overs, is often as much enjoyed as the original dinner. Chop the vegetables, add some of the broth and chopped meat, stirring until well-mixed and seasoned. Salt will need to be added unless the meat is very salt. The broth is very nice and tasty, and may be kept for a dinner soup later in the week.

Rice Salad.—Take one cupful of cooked rice, one cupful of diced cooked beets, and two cupfuls of minced celery. Season with one-quarter of a teaspoonful of mustard, one teaspoonful of powdered sugar, a dash of cayenne, and moisten with a good boiled dressing.

You can bear me witness that I have endeavored to convince you of man's inextinguishable individuality, and of the organic nature of society; that there is no right without a parallel duty, no liberty without the supremacy of the law, and no high destiny without perseverance—that there can be no greatness without self-denial.—From Francis Lieber's address to former pupils.

MORE GOOD FOODS

In the spring when all the winter store of canned and preserved fruit is gone, a very good conserve is the following:

Raisin Peach Conserve.—Wash and soak three cupfuls of dried peaches; cut them into small pieces and use three cupfuls of water. In the morning after soaking all night add one and one-half cupfuls of chopped blanched almonds, three cupfuls of raisins and three cupfuls of sugar; cook until the mixture thickens—about thirty minutes. Add the almonds just at the last, scald them well and pour the conserve into glasses. Seal with paraffin when cold.

Cheese Spread.—Put two cupfuls of milk into a double boiler; when hot add two teaspoonfuls of salt, one-half cupful of flour, mixed well with four tablespoonfuls of butter, add one pound of cream cheese cut fine, cook until smooth, beating well. The addition of a little chopped pepper or pimento will vary the flavor. Spread on buttered bread or wafers, or use as a sandwich filling.

Drop Cakes.—Cream one-half cupful of butter, add gradually, while beating constantly, one cupful of sugar, then add two well-beaten eggs, two squares of melted chocolate, one cupful of chopped almonds, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla, two-thirds of a cupful of bread flour. Beat well and drop by spoonfuls on a buttered baking sheet about two inches apart. Bake in a moderate oven.

Buttercup Jelly.—Soak one-half of a box of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water. Mix the beaten yolks of three eggs with a pint of boiling water and pour over the gelatin. When dissolved add one cupful of sugar, one cupful of orange juice and the juice of a lemon. Strain, mold and serve when cold with whipped cream.

Larry's Big Mistake

By AUSTIN FLEET

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

WHEN Larry lapsed into crime Mary left him. She told him she was through with that sort of thing. He'd learned a trade in the pen, so why not exercise it honestly? Furthermore, she gave him a month to make up his mind whether he'd run straight with her or crooked without her.

Now came word through her friend Sue. "Gee, Larry, you know her old man died last month. He's left her four thousand, and she's fixed up the swellest little apartment for you and the kid. Fine, classy furniture and real silver. I tell you, she's done it in style, that girl. Be wise, Larry; can the game and go back to her."

Larry thought that was the best policy. However, there was a little job he meant to pull off first. With the proceeds he thought he could tackle his trade, with its seven dollars a day, with a lighter heart.

There were some new apartment houses put up uptown, and Larry, prowling by, had seen one on the ground floor, apparently empty for the summer. There were two big windows to the dining-room, and through them he had seen what looked like silver, left out on the buffet.

A little haul like this wouldn't come amiss, and Larry thought the job was an ideal one.

In the first place it was on the ground floor, then it was on the outside of the block, and opposite were some vacant lots. On a dark night, with the patrolman half a mile away, it would be the easiest thing he had ever tackled.

But gradually the scheme developed. Why not make a clean daylight sweep with a furniture van and sell the lot to Finkelbaum, who had a storage warehouse downtown? Larry estimated that it ought to be worth a thousand dollars to him.

He went twice to the apartment house, and rang the bell, but each time there was no response. The family must be away. Larry determined to wait no longer. He entered into negotiations with Finkelbaum, who sent a motor-truck for a clean-out.

Accordingly, one bright morning Larry appeared on the scene with his friend Skinner, and, having rung the bell and ascertained that no one was at home, he and Skinner proceeded to remove the contents of the apartment.

Larry's mouth watered as he looked at them. Real silver, if Larry knew silver from silver-plate! The furniture was all new, too; none of your installment stuff. They stripped the place to the bare floor and the wall, the neighbors looking out behind their curtains.

A thousand dollars? Finkelbaum ought to come across with fifteen hundred, Larry thought, as the ponderous van began to move away. He had run the price up to two thousand by the time they reached the warehouse downtown.

Larry ran Finkelbaum up to thirteen hundred, and after paying Skinner a thousand sat down to breathe. He was done with crime thenceforward. And he began thinking tenderly of Mary and the kid. Gee, what a big fellow the kid must be getting!

He was feeling in fine fettle. He got in touch with Sue.

"Sure I'll fix things with Mary," Sue answered. "She was saying to me only yesterday she's going to move into the new place on Saturday. Say!" Sue reflected, "I was to go to the 'movies' with her tonight. Why don't you come along and surprise her?"

Larry, spruced up, met Sue outside the picture palace at eight. With her was Mary—his lost wife, his love whom he had regained.

With a little, choking cry Mary ran into his arms. And they spent a supremely happy two hours at the "movies," watching a thrilling melodrama of crime.

"Say, Mary, what's the matter with you and me going straight to the new apartment and having a sort of honeymoon till Saturday?" asked Larry. "Sue'll take care of the kid—won't you, Sue?"

Sue was persuaded, and they left the picture house. Mary wanted to take a car.

"Nothing doing," said Larry, with a wave of the hand. "I guess a taxi's none too good for you."

Uptown the taxi sped. Absorbed in each other, they were unconscious of direction until it stopped. Larry got out, paid the driver, and nearly fainted. They were outside the burgled apartment.

"What's the matter, Larry?" asked Mary tenderly.

"I—I forgot something," muttered Larry. "Say, which—which was our apartment?"

Mary looked about her. "Oh, it's a block further along the street," she answered, "fifth floor up. The stupid man made a mistake. You aren't feeling sick, darling?"

"No, fine!" whooped Larry.

Could Be Dispensed With.

Tommy was sent to the store to get a pound and a half of fish. The fish weighed by the clerk was found to weigh a little more than a pound and a half.

"Will that be all right?" asked the man.

"Well," came the reply, "cut the tails off. My mother doesn't use them anyway."

There is a place we speak of as "After a While," but no successful man is ever found in that place.

SUNDAY NIGHT SUPPERS

The evening meal on Sunday night is usually a light one. This is the time when the men in the family learn to do many culinary tricks, which they enjoy; and such knowledge is often invaluable when the wife and mother is ill or away.

The making of a palatable piece of toast is simple, but the hundred varieties of spoiled toast will testify that it is often served as the small boy said, "well burned and scraped at the kitchen sink," his idea of the way to prepare toast.

Toast may be the basis for any number of tasty lunches or suppers. A well-browned, crisp, buttered piece of toast served with rarebit, creamed fish, oysters or a vegetable like celery is a wholesome, filling dish.

A dish which is almost universally liked is fried oysters. Roll the large oysters in rolled crackers that have been well seasoned with salt and pepper, then saute them in butter in the chafing dish or on the gas stove, until they are plump and well-browned. Serve with a relish, or with cabbage dressed with vinegar, salt and pepper.

The relish, whether chowder of chopped vegetable, horseradish sauce or any good chili sauce, may be served in lemon cups, one for each plate. Cut the lemon in halves, trim to make it stand firmly and fill with any desired mixture.

An onion sandwich is a very good one to serve for Sunday night lunch after church. Cut the onion into very thin slices and place on buttered bread. With a glass of milk, hot or cold, or a cupful of hot cocoa, the appetite will be well satisfied. The eating of raw onions once or twice a week will be found highly beneficial, warding off disease and keeping the body in good health. Take cottage cheese or one or two bricks of cream cheese, mix with cream to soften, add a few coarsely-chopped nuts, serve on lettuce with a boiled dressing.

Cold meats left over from the dinner may be used with hot sauces or served as sandwich filling. With cake or cookies one may serve a satisfying meal.

Gloom and sadness are poisons to us, the origin of hysterics, which is a disease of the imagination caused by vexation and supported by fear.—Sevigne.

DO YOU LIKE ONIONS?

The onion is one of the most wholesome of our vegetables. The families who serve them once or twice a week in various ways, cooked or uncooked, will be (other things being normal) the least subject to prevailing diseases.

The onion is soothing to the nerves, a sleep producer, allays inflammation of the mucous membranes and is a fine antiseptic. One of the most appetizing of ways of serving this odoriferous bulb is to throw it or as many as will be eaten, onto a bed of coals to roast. The peeling is not removed; that will be charred; after removing the outside, cut up and dress with butter, pepper and salt.

A stuffed onion is another very tasty dish. The onions are of uniform size to be chosen for this dish—as large as one's appetite for them; parboil and then take out the centers. Chop the centers and save for another dish, or they may be mixed with the filling and put back into the cavity. Fill with chopped cooked ham, bread crumbs and seasonings, or with sausage, or with chopped nuts and other seasonings such as peanut butter, cheese or any desired filling.

Onions Stuffed With Peppers.—Parboil until nearly done six onions of good size. Remove the centers, chop and mix with finely chopped green peppers that have also been parboiled. Season well, fill the onions and bake surrounded by a white sauce. Baste while baking with butter.

Onion Sandwiches.—Those who really find the onion pleasing to the taste will enjoy a slice, seasoned with French dressing for a filling for a sandwich.

Onion Relish.—Take one large onion grated, add one-half cupful of celery juice, grind the celery and press out the juice; one teaspoonful of mustard, ten drops of tabasco, one teaspoonful of salt and celery seed, four well-beaten egg yolks blended with the salt and mustard, and two tablespoonfuls of olive oil, twenty capers and one-fourth of a cupful of vinegar. Serve with game.

PLAY GROUND PLANS

Executive Meeting Will Be Held This Evening.

Play ground plans for the summer of 1923 will be given definite consideration at a meeting of the executive committee to be held this Thursday evening. Last year the play ground was very successful and many boys and girls enjoyed it. This year, plans call for expansion. It is desired to open for the month of August a new play ground at the Bishop St. school building. Some other up-to-the-minute and very progressive plans are to be considered at to-night's meeting and will be announced later.

Last year there was over $700 given for the work, which was so well handled that a balance of almost $200 remains in the treasury and will be used as a nucleus for the fund this year. To expand the work and open a new play ground, will require additional funds, but the Associated Business Men of Bellefonte have written their approval upon the plans so well carried on last summer and will support the work this year. This does not mean, however, that no funds will be solicited. A committee will be selected and plans developed at the meeting this evening for making a thorough canvass of the town and all those who are interested in the boys and girls will be given an opportunity to contribute. John Bullock and John Payne are members of the executive committee representing the business men.

S. S. Aplin and Rev. D. R. Evans, who put their shoulder to the wheel and made possible the realization of the play ground last year, will continue to lend their support, but feel they cannot be as aggressive in the work as last summer and want executive support. Mr. Aplin said: "We were very well pleased with the financial support. It was splendid. But we must have more executive support. We have some big plans in view and are willing to help all we can and to direct, but there should be available and efficient assistance."

HAS BROTHER ARRESTED

H. L. Farwell, of Beech Creek, Charges Embezzlement.

Harry L. Farwell, of Beech Creek, caused the arrest of his brother, J. S. Farwell, of Jersey Shore, on Saturday evening. The arrest was made by W. H. Myers, of Lock Haven, Clinton County detective.

The Beech Creek man charges his brother with embezzling between $14,000 and $16,000 from the estate of the late Lemuel Farwell, deceased, their father. According to the information, the embezzling was carried on over a period of 5 years, J. S. Farwell being executor of the will of his father.

The accused, who intimates his arrest is simply the outcome of family differences and the charges cannot be substantiated, was given a hearing and, in default of $5,000 bail, was placed in the Clinton County jail.

The accused man was formerly a resident of Lock Haven and once served as the city's chief-of-police.

Fishing Party Comes to Grief.

J. L. Henderson, of Cleveland, with three men and two women guests from the same city, touring along the state highway near Pine Grove Mills, with Curtin as their destination, came to grief last Saturday afternoon when the car ignited unexpectedly and burned, being totally destroyed. The party was planning to fish in the Bald Eagle. The cause of the fire was not learned. None of the occupants was burned.
